

City Asks State Aid For Construction Of Bridge At Cherry-St

Mayor Reuter Sends Application For Help To Highway Commission

POSSIBLE TO SAVE $50,000

Believe State Will Welcome Opportunity To Reroute Highway 15

Believing that the Wisconsin highway commission will welcome the opportunity to eliminate the so-called "death gap" on state trunk highway 15 where it passes through the "dats" the city of Appleton has made application to the commission for federal, state and county aid in construction of Cherry-st bridge. A letter has been sent to the commission by Mayor Henry Reuter and he expects an answer in a few days.

Mayor Reuter had R. M. Connelly, city engineer, prepare a plat blueprint of the central portion of the city showing the present highway route and the proposed one. This will be sent to Madison at once for the commission's consideration.

CAN GET STATE HELP

City officials who attended the convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities at Stevens Point recently, inquired exhaustively into the subject of state aid for construction of bridges on trunk highways. It was found that it was possible to obtain this financial help where the projects are a distinct aid to the tourist traffic, and the mayor made arrangements at once to lay the matter before the state authorities.

It is estimated that $50,000 or more may be saved the taxpayers if the outside assistance is obtained. This was the motive when the Lake-st viaduct was discussed, and it is found that it would apply equally well to the Cherry-st project. Mayor Reuter believes this saving is worth striving for if there is any way to get it.

ELIMINATING DANGER

The drawing, which will be submitted to the commission shows conclusively the value of rerouting the state highways over Cherry-st bridge instead of Lake-st. This was the motive when the Lake-st viaduct was discussed, and it is found that it would apply equally well to the Cherry-st project. Mayor Reuter believes this saving is worth striving for if there is any way to get it.

The approach to the bridge south of the river would be a street 100 feet wide with a boulevard through the center. It would pass the E. J. Lynch August Verbrick and John Bouten farms and Riverview Country club grounds. A park is provided on the river bank just south of the bridge. The entire plan would give the tourist a scenic entrance to Appleton and create a much better impression of the city, it is believed.

"We hope to have the highway commission come up here in a body and look over the whole situation," said Mayor Reuter. "Then a meeting could be arranged with the council and the county board and the matter could be discussed thoroughly."

RAISE FUNDS TO DRAIN CESSPOOL

East End Property Owners Will Build Sewer To Dry Up Foul Hole

Foul odor and mosquito swarms which have annoyed residents of Pacific and Atlantic streets near Rankin-st all summer will be eliminated through a co-operative project to drain the cesspool at that point of a cesspool which has formed there.

The taxpayers consulted R. M. Connelly, city engineer, and were informed that the hole could be drained by connecting it with the Atlantic-st sewer. Property owners agreed to pay the cost without having it go through tax channels and Frank Lantz, sewer contractor, has been engaged to do the work.

H. B. Little has been appointed by the city engineer to collect the funds to defray the cost.

Manitoba Drys Victorious By Big Majority

By Associated Press
Winnipeg, Man.—By a majority of approximately 25,000, Manitoba on Wednesday refused to permit the sale of beer and light wines with meals in licensed hotels.

The majority compared favorably with the 40,000 majority cast three weeks ago when the province adopted the plan of the moderation league for sale by the government of all liquors for beverage purposes. The "wet" majority three weeks ago was 40,000 in a total of 165,000 votes, whereas Wednesday's 25,000 majority was in a total of about half that figure.

ATTACK ON WAUSAU WOMAN IS MYSTERY

Stepdaughter Of Mrs. Lawando Missing; Police Seek Clues

By Associated Press
Wausau—The mystery surrounding the identity of the assailant of Mrs. Walter Lawando of the town of Kironowich, upon whom more than twenty wounds were inflicted when she was attacked while asleep at her home, has not been solved. A stepdaughter who formerly was employed in Wausau, but who has disappeared, is being sought in the hope that she can clear up the matter or give some information. An automobile owned by the stepdaughter, was found near the Lawando home and its presence there has not been explained. Mr. Lawando is employed at the Wausau Sulphate Fiber company plant at Noshinaw and on the night of the assault was at the mill until 6:30 o'clock in the morning, making it impossible for him to have had any knowledge of the assault. There has been some talk of a stranger being seen in the woods near the Lawando home on the evening preceding the assault, but this cannot be confirmed as a search of the woods was fruitless. Until the stepdaughter is located there is little hope of solving the mystery, as neither Mrs. Lawando or her little daughter, who was also slightly wounded, can give any description of her assailant.

BLAINE SIGNS BILL TO PROBE UNPAID TAXES

Measure Increasing Tuition Of Non-resident Student Is Vetoed

By Associated Press
Madison—Income tax returns back to January 1, 1915 were opened to the tax commission Thursday by Governor Blaine's signature to the Barker bill. As a result of this new law, corporations and individuals face further investigation by auditors operating under an increased appropriation allowed by the legislature.

By extending back eight years the period over which the tax commission may search for unpaid income taxes, the legislature was of the belief that a large amount of revenue would be realized.

The new law, in addition to opening returns to 1915, gives the tax commission power to assess as much as double the regular tax if it finds that evasion of payment has been attempted.

OPPOSE TECHNICALITIES

Governor Blaine Thursday vetoed a bill by Assemblyman Walter providing for a review of income tax assessments under a writ of certiorari. His disapproval was based upon the ground that the proposed law would inject technicalities into the income tax statute which might often result in the invalidating of assessments.

The other bills vetoed by the governor provided for an increase of the tuition fee charged nonresident pupils by vocational schools of the state and extension of authority to insurance agencies to sell policies of companies not licensed in Wisconsin.

In disapproving the Walter bill, Governor Blaine said that "the legal consequences of this proposed act would be that if a mistake were made in the record of the assessment of an income tax, the whole assessment might be set aside upon a mere technicality. This bill goes in the wrong direction and multiplies court procedure and encourages resort to technicalities."

INJUSTICE TO FARMERS

The governor's veto of the tuition bill was based on the claim that it would do an injustice to rural communities by forcing them to pay the cost of training their children in the vocational schools of cities, where they would then more than likely make their residence. He suggested that the increased amount of tuition should be made definite instead of varying with the cost of instruction as proposed in the bill.

The Wisconsin policy holder would have no remedy in Wisconsin courts against unauthorized insurance companies if agents of unlicensed companies were allowed to sell policies in the state as proposed by the bill he vetoed, Governor Blaine said.

NEW OFFICE CREATED

An official state toxicologist maintained to investigate criminal cases involving poisoning both of animals and persons, followed Governor Blaine's signature Thursday to a bill appropriating $4,500 for use by the state toxicologist.

The large number of poison cases that have developed during the past few months led to the legislative act providing for a toxicologist. District attorneys of the state are given authority to call upon him to aid them in solution of problems involving poisoning.

FARMER AND CITY PROBLEMS ALIKE

Farmer-Businessmen's Conference At Milwaukee Closes Today

By Associated Press
Milwaukee—William C. Butterworth, president of Deer and company, farm machinery manufacturers, told those attending the first Wisconsin farmer-businessmen conference here Thursday, that there is little difference in the difficulties encountered by the manufacturer and the farmer.

The farmers, he said, find it difficult to purchase new machinery, because of the fact that the manufacturer has difficulty in purchasing the raw material. The cost of production has increased over that of former years, just as the farmer finds the cost of producing his products advanced. Labor, he said, finds higher wages paid in other forms of employment, and for that reason the farmer finds it difficult to obtain farm hands.

DEPLORES WOMAN LABOR

E. L. Phillip, former governor, deplored the fact that many farmers find it necessary to employ women members of their families in the fields to meet conditions.

The sessions will close Thursday afternoon following a talk by E. R. Estberg of the First State Bank of Waukesha on the financing of the farmer.

Paul C. Burchard of Fort Atkinson, secretary of the Wisconsin Dairy men's association, told the delegates Thursday that dairymen in Wisconsin can be made more profitable in all sections of the state, if farmers will place their hands and feet on the head of the matter and keep the cattle clean and healthy. This, he said, will assure high production and enable the state to turn out the best butter and cheese in the country.

H. E. Byram, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul railway, told those present at Wednesday night's session that the railroads of the country have not broken down but are recovering from the same condition which has caused every one to ask "what's wrong?"

Temporary Injunction Against Railmen Made Permanent By Decree Of U. S. District Court

By Associated Press
Chicago—A final decree making permanent the temporary injunction obtained by the United States government in federal court here October 5, 1922, against the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, its officers, and others, restraining them from interfering in any manner, shape or form in the operation of railroads during the nationwide shopmen's strike, was entered Thursday by Judge James H. Wilkerson of the United States district court.

STRIKE STILL ON IN THEORY

Theoretically, the strike is still in effect. The shopmen left their posts of duty on July 1, 1922, when the United States Railroad Labor board ordered a cut in their wages, effective on the 1st of July.

The men returned to work in September on the basis of what was known as the Baltimore agreement, which was entered into by 31 major railroads of the country. The agreement left the question of seniority, which was the main bone of contention after the strike had extended into a month, to the commission to decide.

The railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor as a body, is now restrained permanently from interfering with the operation of the nation's carriers, as is Bert M. Jewell, president of the department; J. F. McGrath, vice president, and John Scott, secretary and treasurer; International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers, and Helpers, and its president, James W. Kline; International Alliance of Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, and President J. H. Hynes; International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders, and Helpers of America, and President J. A. Franklin; Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, and President Martin F. Ryan; International Association of Machinists, and President William H. Johnson; and E. C. Davidson, grand secretary and treasurer; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and President James P. Noonan, and numerous other system federations and the presidents and secretaries thereof.

The cost of the shopmen's strike on the fifty railroads from which evidence was adduced amounted to approximately $96,501,376 according to government testimony.

The case was handled in Judge Wilkerson's court Thursday by Jacob M. Dickinson and O. J. Taylor of Chicago, who were appointed special assistants to the attorney general.

In making the injunction permanent, Judge Wilkerson said in part: "It seems almost incredible that warfare of the kind disclosed by the voluminous record in this case should have been waged in this country. It is even more ominous that this unlawful assault upon the commerce of the nation should have found apologists and defendants, including some, happily a few, however, of those charged with the duty of protecting property and enforcing the law."

"The strike was more than a controversy between employer and employee. Its manifest purpose, as shown by the evidence, was to cripple and destroy interstate commerce, and to create by this assault a public opinion hostile to the decision of the board. The primary purpose of the combination therefore is unlawful and it may not be carried out by means that otherwise would be legal."

AL SMITH MAY RUN ON STATE RIGHTS TICKET

New York Governor Natural Candidate If Democrats Go Wet, Lawrence Says

Strongest Political Factor Of Empire State Is Self-Made Man

At the conclusion of this series, Mr. Lawrence's daily cables from Europe will begin exclusively in the Post-Crescent.)

Governor Al Smith of New York is the natural and inevitable candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency if the party decides to be wet. He has made the fight for state rights on the prohibition question. He has twice carried New York state which has the strongest electoral vote in the Union and he has a sympathetic following in the other populous eastern states.

STATE RIGHTS

The general supposition of those who have been discussing Al Smith's candidacy is that the Democratic party would come out flatly for a repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Such strategy would be doomed to failure. What Democrats would be more likely to urge if anything is that the entire prohibition question be taken out of the hands of the federal government for enforcement and left to the individual states to interpret and regulate. They would say to the drys: "You may have prohibition wherever a majority of the people of the sovereign states in the Union want it but do not interfere with the people in those wet states where a majority would prefer light wines and beer."

CUT WEEDS, CITY ENGINEER WARNS

City Will Do Work At Taxpayer's Expense Otherwise, Connelly Says

People are warned once more by R. M. Connelly, city weed commissioner, to cut down all noxious weeds on their property. Many have complied with his first request, but others have let the weeds continue to grow.

All should cut their own weeds immediately, the commissioner says, otherwise city employees will do this work and charge the cost in the tax assessments next fall. The fee will be $1 or more in such cases.

The law requires that all weeds be cut down before they go to seed, to prevent their spread. When all cooperate those who have freed their property of weeds will not suffer from the negligence of their neighbors.

MORE DETOURS ON STATE HIGHWAYS

Southeastern Wisconsin Is Network Of Detours Around Road Work

By Associated Press

Milwaukee—According to the Milwaukee Journal tour department added construction work makes it practically impossible to travel any of the state highways in southeastern Wisconsin without detouring. In the northern part of the state, the past week has brought out several new construction jobs, but they are away from detours, traveling at your own risk.

Highway 61 to Beloit has two detours, one from East Troy to the intersection of 12 and the other from Darien to Clinton. Both are well marked, however, and passable.

Highway 12 has a detour south of Whitewater, one between Whitewater and Port Atkinson and one from Port Atkinson to Cambridge. All are well marked and passable.

Highway 50 is under detour from the intersection of 57 west. Same is rather rough.

Highway 20 is under detour from Burlington to Spring Prairie. Detour is passable.

Highway 25 from Watertown north to Juneau is under detour. Detours not very good.

Highway 23 is closed west of Hartford, also from Hustisford to highway 26, and from Lowell to Columbus. Detours are rather rough.

Highway 35 from Burnsville to Anona is under detour which is rather poor. Construction work on 35 between Deerbrook and the intersection of 14. Would advise the use of county trunks C-H-B-G in these two points. Highway 77 from Hurley to Mellen is under construction with no detours.

TRIAL OF HAMMER MURDERER BEGINS

By Associated Press
Superior—The trial of Jacob Vassil, 25 year old "ledge hammer slayer," swung into its second day Thursday with prospects rosy that a jury will have been selected by adjournment time Thursday afternoon.

Vassil is charged with one of the most brutal crimes in annals of the northwest—the beating to a pulp with a ledge hammer and axe of Nicholas Triff on December 28, last.

Vassil is alleged to have confessed the crime. Police experts also identified the finger prints found on the gory implements used by the slayer as Vassil's.

Self defense and insanity will be made the basis of the defense it was indicated when questioning of prospective jurors got under way Wednesday. It was indicated that it would be the contention of the defense that Vassil, who does not deny the crime, would present evidence to show that his mind had become, and is unduly, as a result of excessive use of drugs.

Evidence will be introduced to also show that Vassil's life had been threatened by Triff.

Reply To German Reparation Note Will Be Submitted To Allies At Once

ITALY AND FRANCE NOTIFIED

Hope Is Expressed For Participation Of United States In Settlement

By Associated Press

London—Large throngs of people flocked Thursday to the house of parliament to listen to the long anticipated statements by Prime Minister Baldwin and Lord Curzon on Great Britain's reparations policy.

It has been a long time since any ministerial utterance here was awaited with such eagerness and curiosity.

The cabinet, which previously had agreed upon the general outline of the ministerial declaration was understood to be reviewing the whole situation again Thursday before parliament assembled. The official secrecy that has vetted the most recent difficulties between Great Britain and France on the reparations question was well maintained to the last, as was indicated by the varying forecasts offered to the public by the political writers in the morning newspapers.

The outstanding point in many of these predictions concerned the probable future attitude of the United States and a strong hope was expressed that there be American participation in the settlement which the optimists hope is forthcoming.

Great Britain has informed France and Italy that she is ready to assume the responsibility of preparing the draft of a reply to the German reparations note.

The reply will be submitted to the allies with the least possible delay in the hope that they will agree to its terms.

Announcement of this effect was made by Premier Baldwin in a statement to the house of commons Thursday, on Great Britain's reparations policy.

The British government, he said, invites the sympathy of the allies and of all interested states for the proposal which aims solely at the pacification of Europe and the recovery of the exhausted world.

Replying to questions by Ramsay MacDonald, the opposition leader, Premier Baldwin said the reply to Germany would be proceeded with forthwith. He would say Friday whether the reply was being communicated to the United States.

Commander Kenworthy, Liberal member for Hull, asked whether the government had approached or had been approached by the United States in the matter of reparations. Mr. Baldwin's reply was that he had not been approached by the United States. He would say Friday whether the reply was being communicated to the United States.

After the premier's address Mr. MacDonald expressed the hope on behalf of the Labor party that the premier's efforts would be successful.

The first impression of all in the intensely eager and plainly nervous house was that the premier had steered his course through the troubled waters so carefully that there was no possibility of offense to France. Another impression was that he had told the world very little which had not already become a matter of common knowledge during the discussion of the last few weeks.

He painted a broadly gloomy picture of the chaos toward which Germany was heading and drawing with her the rest of Europe, but his exposition brought forth no new points, he only hinted at a breach among the allies, saying: "So far as united action is possible we shall continue to pursue it."

The speech was evidently the first chapter in a record the most interesting chapter of which are yet to come.

Mr. Baldwin failed to state what the British proposals will be in the note the government intends framing, nor did he say anything in regard to an international commission to examine into Germany's capacity to pay.

MARINETTE GIRL LOST ON GLACIER

Neenah Man Also Suffers Mishap On Banker's Trip To Alaska

Milwaukee—Miss Esther Delbridge, youngest daughter of J. H. Delbridge, a wealthy Marinette paper manufacturer, who is a member of the Wisconsin Alaskan party of bankers, was lost on a glacier at Jasper park, Alberta, Canada, on Tuesday. The entire party took a ten mile drive by automobile to snow capped "Edith Cavell" mountain where an ascent of 2,000 feet is made in a four mile drive. The automobile road ends six miles from Cavell glacier, but six young ladies of the party, being anxious to ascend to the glacier, engaged horses and a guide, left the balance of the party and started the ascent. After a strenuous climb, the base of the glacier, 8,000 feet above sea level, was reached.

WAITED FOR OTHERS
Miss Delbridge suffers from a weak heart and fearing over exertion, she decided to remain at the foot of the glacier while the rest of the party, continued to climb up the ice and snow for another hour. On their return by another route to the base of the glacier Miss Delbridge was not in sight. It was ascertained that she had decided to resume the climb, and had followed their tracks, expecting to meet them as they returned. Greatly alarmed, higher again ascended the perilous path to rescue Miss Delbridge, and almost exhausted, returned with her to her sisters, who were in hysterical condition.

Another accident occurred on the trip when William Nash, of Neenah, was thrown from his horse on a mountain climbing and fishing trip, due to

Capacity Of Building Largely Increased By New Construction

The new addition of the Y. M. C. A. which is being built around the swimming pool leaving a court above the pool will be under cover within a few days. Electricians and steam fitters are at work in the addition and it is expected now that the dormitories will be ready for occupancy before cold weather.

The court has been left over the pool in order that none of the light and air which have made the swimming at the Y. M. C. A. so pleasant would be lost. The addition will give the institution 15 new dormitories, two new clubrooms and a 4-man handball room. The total number of dormitories in the building when the addition is completed will be 84. Even during the summer, the 66 rooms now available for sleeping quarters are constantly filled.

$30,000 AT STAKE FOR STEVENS POINT

City Will Get More State Aid For Bridge If It Is 4th Class

Stevens Point, Wis.—All Stevens Point is awaiting an opinion of the attorney general on its claim to being a city of the fourth class instead of third, for on the decision rests whether $30,000 will be saved to Stevens Point and Portage county. The question applies to construction of the new bridge across the Wisconsin river here.

Under the state laws the cost of a bridge on a trunk line highway in a third class city is charged one-third each to the state, county and city, while in a fourth class city the state pays half and the county half, the county then assessing 40 per cent of its share to the city.

The cost of the new bridge here has been estimated by the state highway commission at $180,000. Under the third class plan the city would have to pay $60,000, and the county and state equal amounts. Under the fourth class plan the state would pay $90,000, the county $54,000, and the city $36,000.

With more than 10,000 people, Stevens Point has a population which entitles it to third class ranking, but it is being claimed that the city is still in the fourth class because of having failed to go through with the formalities which would place it in the third class. This point was argued at a hearing before the state highway commission this week, and the commission submitted it to the attorney general.

BUILDING PERMITS

Four permits for construction valued at $2,600 were issued by G. E. Peotter, building inspector, within the last 24 hours. They are: Anton O. Koehn, 745 Richmond-st. garage. F. J. Vanderlinden, 728 Fremont-st. garage. Albert Roehl, 1110 Lafayette-st. basement. Henry Fulcer, 880 North Division-st. residence.

BUS COMPANIES RAPPED BY ILLINOIS HIGH COURT

Automobile bus companies were characterized as "shootings competition" in a decision of the Illinois supreme court reversing an order of the Illinois state commission granting a permit to a bus company to compete with the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin electric lines. The decision said that the savings of millions of investors are tied up in permanent transportation lines and these savings are endangered by bus companies which give service only when conditions are right. The court also held that in case of a breakdown of permanent lines the people would be left to walk because the state would be powerless to force bus companies to provide service.

GILMAN CHECKING UP ON FOND DU LAC DEALERS

G. D. Gilman of Appleton, state inspector of weights and measures, was in Fond du Lac Tuesday checking up on butchers and grocers who were alleged to have failed to mark their delivery packages with the weight of the article delivered.

The state law requires that every article delivered to a customer's house must have the exact weight written on a ticket attached to it. This ticket is not necessary when the customer sees the article weighed, wrapped and takes it home himself. A heavy fine is attached for violation of the law.

PARKING HELD TO BE PRIVILEGE BUT NOT A RIGHT

Moving Vehicle Must Receive
First Consideration On Street

One misconception motorists have throughout the country concerns their parking privileges.

Many a driver has run into an argument with a traffic officer because he misinterpreted his privilege to park on a crowded street, as a right. He is set back a bit when he is told parking is only a privilege, and comes second to the right of moving drivers to space on the streets.

First comes the moving vehicle. When a street is so narrow or so crowded as to make traffic difficult, with cars parked along the curbs, no parking is allowed.

Traffic officials and safety advocates are now trying to instill this idea into the minds of motorists. Fully advised of this, they believe, motorists would first see that their parked cars did not interfere with traffic before they left the machines at the curbs.

Besides, it is expected, this will help influence action for better parking facilities in the downtown areas of the big cities. Many suggestions have been made for such relief, but no official action has as yet been taken.

In New York it has been suggested that automobiles carrying less than three persons be not permitted to enter the congested areas during rush hours. Also, some engineers have come forth with plans for parking spaces underneath parks, double-level streets and other means of providing more space for moving traffic.

Eventually the parking problem will resolve itself to more strict control of downtown traffic, with permission for short interval parking only to those who need their automobiles in their work.

Another fuel to save pennies for the motorist! This time it is eucalyptus oil, heretofore used mainly in medicinal preparations.

A British army transport officer, now in Australia, reports he has succeeded in using this oil as a motor fuel. He made 36 miles on a gallon of this oil, he states. Besides, the oil acts as a re-carbonizing agent.

The American cheap car is still far ahead of its European competitors, even in their own home markets. Despite the high import duties, the American automobile has found much greater favor than cars of local manufacture.

They're cheaper, that's why. High taxation, coupled with high cost of production, has retarded keen competition with American products.

TRUCKMEN WAIT WORD ON NEW LICENSE FEES

Most motor truck owners in Appleton are waiting for an official notice from the state before making any plans toward the payment of the license fee required by the new weight tax law. Despite the fact that the motor trucks have already been licensed to operate between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1923, the new law requires payment to be made this summer.

The $25 license fee required by the old law is to be deducted. One type of truck is required to pay $175 according to the new law.

Reports from Milwaukee indicate that the truck owners will defy the state to collect the fee for this year. The large transportation companies are combining with those who own only a single truck to withstand the state.

Mother And Son Walk 800 Miles As A Vacation

Appleton was host this week to an unusual duo of travelers when Mrs. A. C. Chandler and her son stopped here on their hike from Minneapolis to Chicago and return. Mrs. Chandler and the boy are walking for health and for enjoyment and apparently are finding both.

The couple started from Minneapolis about three weeks ago and followed the Yellowstone trail through Appleton and the Fox river valley. They expect to remain in Chicago a few days and then return. The round trip is about 800 miles.

When they started out the pair refused "lifts" but recently Mrs. Chandler wrenched an ankle and has accepted rides for short distances.

Mrs. Chandler was surprised by the cordiality of the people she met. As a general thing the travelers stop in hotels but in Appleton they were guests of friends for a day or two. Inasmuch as they are traveling for the enjoyment they get out of it, Mrs. Chandler and her son seldom walk more than 12 or 15 miles in a day. The boy is a student in a Minneapolis high school.

C. W. KIRSCH OPENS NEW FACTORY UNIT

Announcement has been made of the opening of another factory building of the Kirsch Manufacturing company at Sturgis, Mich. C. W. Kirsch, one of the members of the company, is the son of Nicholas Kirsch, 610 Second avenue. He was the inventor for whom the well known Kirsch curtain rods were named.

The new factory building contains clubrooms which include bowling alleys, swimming pool, shower baths, auditorium, gymnasium and ballroom, cafeteria, dining room, roof garden, billiard room, reading room, all equipped with the latest apparatus and furniture. The recreational activities of the employees are under the direction of a special director of industrial relations.

SOO LINE HEADS HERE ON INSPECTION TOUR

C. E. Urbahn and F. W. They were working south and from here went to Venah where their car was attached to a train headed for Minneapolis.

GOOD YEAR

RACINE SUBMITS GARBAGE FIGURES

Cost Data Will Be Used For Reference By Chamber Of Commerce

Racine's monthly expense for the last year in collection and disposal of garbage is shown in a statement received by the chamber of commerce from Henry Welson, superintendent of collection in that city. This information was furnished Hush G. Corbett, managing secretary, supplementary to a visit to Racine recently to inspect the system in use there.

The Racine data will be added to the information which is being collected as a guide in the movement to provide an adequate system here. More than 1,000,000 pounds is collected in the summer and about 600,000 pounds in the winter, the Racine report shows. Collection costs totaled $3,230 to 643 a ton and disposal expense $201 to $264 a ton. A system of horse-drawn wagons is used for collection, and a truck makes the long haul to the disposal plant with the wagons as trailers.

A description of Chicago's garbage collection system as described in the Chicago Tribune also is attracting interest here. It is shown that two of Chicago's plants are not in use, one of them never finished for use, and that the other which converts the refuse to grease and fertilizer is operating at a loss. It once showed a profit and figures are shown to indicate that Cleveland now makes money on its plant.

Canada holds the last great area of unoccupied land to be had for nothing or at nominal cost.

YOUR OBSTACLES

We do our best work under difficulties. The same as an army puts up its best fight when trapped in a corner. No songs ever were written and no orations delivered about an army that had easy picking. Heroic deeds, really big accomplishments, are staged by the warriors who win in the face of desperate odds, such as the handful of men holding the mountain pass or trench until help arrives. This is a good thing to keep in mind, when our obstacles seem beyond our powers to handle them. It is the working of a natural law.

Farmers and amateur gardeners often wonder why crops cannot grow as prolifically and with as much strength as weeds. This is the answer: Weeds grow wild, with no helping hand, and they have to fight hard for existence or perish. They fight hard. That is why they survive. Take a garden. The vegetables receive almost constant aid from man. They are, in effect, pampered. Through many generations they have come to "expect" this outside aid, in the sense that by having this aid supplied to them they have lost much of the natural vigor and initiative of vegetable life in the wild state. Progressively as you take the obstacles away, the garden truck becomes weaker in ability to compete for existence with other growing things. So with all of us. Obstacles are sent to make us fight, thereby developing our powers, our strength.

Carveth Wells, explorer, blazed a railroad route through Malay jungles. He and his crew hacked their way through dense wild growth. When they returned, months later, they found that the surveying stakes which they had driven along the path had grown up into tall bamboo trees. That would not happen with domesticated trees, accustomed through generations to being pampered and aided, and thereby weakened. The bamboo, forced to struggle in competition with millions of other specimens of plant life in the dense jungles, had built up a tremendous power of growth and victory.

You will find the same thing in the far north, where short summer seasons make the struggle for existence so acute and intense that vegetation grows with almost asparagus speed, and spilled grass seed even sprouts in the cinders along railroad tracks. Compare this with the trouble you have growing grass on your lawn.

You have observed how rats and mice flourish and multiply as a reaction to being constantly hunted. So on, all through the animal kingdom, man included. Success of the able, like survival of the fittest, necessitates a hard struggle.

RADIO IN SUMMER

As a summer sport, listening to radio has never been very popular. In the first place the conditions of transmission are not as good as in cold weather; and on top of that, up to April 1 last year there were only 137 broadcasting stations in the country, many of them so inferior in their programs that the chief effort of the amateur was to "get over" them and catch something else. When summer shortened the radius of the good stations thousands quit listening.

But this summer promises to herald a change. The bureau of standards at Washington reports that the number of licensed broadcasters has jumped to 500, all of them furnishing an excellent and regular service. This means that instead of the large areas which last summer could catch hardly anything worth while there is only one place in the United States which is not within 150 miles of a good broadcasting station, and 90 per cent of the national area is within a 100-mile radius of such a plant. The weather's reduction in distance will not cut anybody out of his evening's entertainment; it will merely reduce the number of stations between which he may choose.

The great progress in summer radio will come when a cheap and workable outfit can be packed in a case and carried as hand baggage, like a small typewriter or a cottage phonograph, to resort and forest and wilderness.

A NOVEL ECONOMIC THEORY

Why is it that imports have been increasing more than the exports? The high tariff should, it would seem, bar out imports. That is what most of us believe. There is another plausible theory, and many facts support it, at least to an extent, and it is that extremely high import duties establish extremely high prices, with the result that exportation is restricted. On the other hand, high and rising prices attract imports. It is a theory worth thinking about seriously, as there is obviously considerable merit to it. It is another argument for a scientific, flexible tariff.

WHERE MONEY GOES

Without a single cent of outside investment except in one company, the copper industry of America expanded in smelting capacity from 20,000,000 tons of ore to 22,500,000 tons between 1915 and 1918, in refining capacity from 1,728,000,000 to 2,794,000,000 pounds, and in total copper production from 1,250,000,000 to 2,000,000,000 pounds. This tremendous investment in new machinery and plant during the war period was made by the people who owned the companies and who, instead of taking dividends, turned the money back into the industry. They did it at the expense of personal luxuries they could have had for the voting. Most of this ambitious investment of savings and profits was sheer loss, for the principal result was an overproduction crisis. But the American and world public naturally reaped the benefit.

Similar courageous and self-denying reinvestment of earnings occurred in iron and steel and in zinc mining. It is scarcely necessary to point to such fortunes as the revolving of funds back into industry, creating more wages and producing more materials, with only enough saved out for reasonably frugal living on the part of owners; or Henry Ford's, which goes into the new plants and railroads and other ventures as fast as it is made.

It is this quality of initiative and the ambition to risk which gives us quantity production at great efficiency. Detractors of "the present economic order" have built a myth that the nation's capital is wantonly and inefficiently spent, or hoarded away to create shortages and bigger profits. A glance around us—at Fords and phones, at railroads and skyscrapers and all the hundreds of home commodities manufactured here as in no other country on earth—gives them the lie. Prof. Oswald K. Knauth, whose figures on copper are quoted above, remarks that "the magnified desire of American business men to expand their business at the expense of personal savings and even comforts has become a national characteristic in the same sense that family thrift and saving is strikingly exemplified in France."

Most of America's money goes, not into extravagance nor into the coffers of misers, but back into industry.

TODAY'S POEM

By Berton Braley

REASON ENOUGH

Impulsive and capricious,
With moods you cannot guess,
But whimsical, delicious
In her capriciousness;
You ask her why she's frowning
All logic, rules and laws,
She answers, pertly pouting,
"Just because!"

One moment she's all laughter,
An imp on flying feet,
An then the moment after
She's shy, demure and sweet;
She's changeable as a season,
Of sun and snow and thaws,
With this her only reason,
"Just because!"

She'll lead the man she marries
A very hectic life,
With all the swift vagaries
With which her ways are rife,
One can't be certain of her,
She's full of faults and flaws,
And yet—and yet I love her,
"Just because!"

HOW TO BANISH THE BULGE

A fair and warmer reader complains: The diaphragm mystery, which you undertook to clear up in a recent article, is still as much a mystery as ever to me, for while you say that the corsetiers are joking when they talk about overcomin' a bulging diaphragm, it is a fact that after a woman has gone without a corset or has worn a very loose top corset for a few months there is an unsightly bulge just above the waist line, a bulge which no woman is fond of. Please tell us how to call this bulge, if it isn't the diaphragm and how to banish it. We know that there are ways—stretching exercises or wearing corsets which cover this region.

In the recent article the reader refers to I tried to explain that the diaphragm is a thin muscular membrane which stretches like a tent, the shape of an inverted soup plate, across the trunk, separating the chest cavity from the abdominal cavity. Therefore it would be an impossibility for the diaphragm to bulge; the bulge the reader describes might be called the liver, the stomach, anything movable in that part of the body, with more accuracy than to call it the diaphragm.

The best way to banish that bulge is by combining a little plain sense with reasonable adherence to the dictates of style or fashion or custom, as regards clothing. I have preached this for years, at the cost of—well, at some cost, because it is one of the most important hygienic factors in the life and the happiness of those who are to be the mothers of men.

The exercises which tend to prevent the pathological bulge are not so much stretching exercises as bending exercises. I have given them in detail here. They are included in the group of home exercises now familiar to many a poor person who reads these lines, as the Brady symphony: If, as I fear, there still be some in need of just a touch of physical training of this kind I still have a few thousand copies of the symphony for free distribution. Write for a copy with a stamped self-addressed envelope and omit from this particular letter recitals of the symptoms of the neighbors or other extraneous matters.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Edison Myth

In Edison's autobiography I read that he has slept only four or five hours a day for many years. How is this possible? I have tried sleeping six hours a day and was all but fresh when I awoke.

A. S. Answer—An infant a few days old sleeps nearly all the time. A child a few years old must have 12 or more hours of sleep a day. An elderly person needs only six or seven hours of sleep if he or she does not get much muscular exercise or do muscular work. Adults engaged in mental work need less sleep than adults who do manual labor. One tired out from physical work or play or exercise needs prolonged rest but not necessarily sleep; in fact, rest without sleep often proves more refreshing for tired muscles. One tired out from holding down a desk chair or matching his wits with some one else has burned up less fuel running his brain than one tired out from playing ball or walking or working has used up working his muscles. The "brain worker" likewise has less waste matter, fatigue products, to dispose of. Hence the brain worker is sufficiently refreshed by perhaps six or seven hours of sleep, whereas the muscle worker must get eight or nine. The brain worker who has a health habit, taking some moderate exercise every day, is better refreshed with less sleep than he would be without any exercise, because a little exercise, such as walking three to six miles daily, stimulates the absorption of oxygen, which oxidizes and renders harmless the acid byproducts of functional activity. Edison has for years snatched naps in his laboratory whenever his desire for sleep occurred to him; no doubt if his naps were figured in he would get as much sleep as any other brain worker.

Buttermilk

Is buttermilk fattening? Is buttermilk more nourishing than sweet milk?—Mrs. S. O.

Answer—Buttermilk is about equal to skim milk in nutritive value, and that is about half the nutritive value of fresh or sweet milk.

U. S. Should Not Be In Isolation, Say U. S. Editors

That the editors of the country are overwhelmingly opposed to a policy of isolation, is the finding developed by the Institute of American Business as a result of a symposium conducted under its auspices.

Republican editors indorse President Harding's proposal that the United States join the world court under conditions that will entail no entangling alliances.

Democratic editors not only indorse the world court idea as a second choice, but still remain faithful to the Wilson league of Nations program.

Inquiries were addressed to 1,000 daily and weekly newspapers outside the metropolitan centers. Republican, Democratic and independent publications being given representation in proportion to the total number of papers included in each classification. Seven hundred and thirty-five replies were received. The questions at issue as stated in the symposium were:

FOUR QUESTIONS

1. Should the United States enter the league of nations as now organized and share with the other members the full responsibilities, which its covenant involves?

2. Should the United States enter the league of nations with such reservations as will limit the league in its jurisdiction as far as we are concerned to appeals made to world public opinion in behalf of its decisions?

3. Should the United States give conditional adherence to the permanent court of international justice established at The Hague under the auspices of the league of nations in accordance with the provisions of the Harding-Hughes formula?

4. Should the United States give unconditional adherence to a supreme court of the world organized to outlaw war, in accordance with the provisions of the formula elaborated by Senator Borah?

While the Democratic editors heard from were overwhelmingly in favor of having the United States enter the league of nations as now organized and share with the other members the full responsibilities, which its covenant involves, they were as a rule far more inclined to accept a compromise proposition than their Republican brothers. Replies were received from 98 editors of Democratic dailies. Of this number 73 favored entering the league, while 18 voiced an emphatic no. Of the 96 heard from, 39 were willing to enter the league with reservations, while 27 stood out for the league or nothing.

Fifty-four Democratic editors made the permanent court of international justice established under the auspices of the league of nations "in accordance with the provisions of the Harding-Hughes formula" a third choice. They were willing to accept the court if it was impossible to bring the United States into the league. Twenty-one were even willing to accept the supreme court of the world proposition as elaborated by Senator Borah.

Replies were received from 192 editors of Republican dailies. Only 15 of this number were for the Wilson league, 177 saying no. The number willing to enter the league with reservations was 33, 156 declining to accept the league in any form.

The showing in favor of the permanent court of international justice established under the auspices of the league of nations "in accordance with the provisions of the Harding-Hughes formula" was 150 to 51. Thirty-six Republican editors were willing to accept the Borah world court proposition, while 138 registered their opposition. The same general figures prevailed as far as the editors of Republican weeklies were concerned, only nine being willing to accept the Wilson league. The number willing to enter the league with reservations was 21, while on the Harding-Hughes

WEEKLIES BOOST LEAGUE

Replies were received from the editors of 105 Democratic weeklies. They stood 87 to 18 in favor of the league. Replies were received from 135, 93 standing for the Wilson league as against 42 opposed. The showing as far as entering the league with reservations was concerned was 60 for to 36 against. While only 93 of the 135 were willing to enter the league, 102 found the Harding-Hughes world court acceptable, 33 being willing to accept the Borah world court as a compromise.

The editors of independent dailies were consistently opposed to isolation. Replies were received from 135, 93 standing for the Wilson league as against 42 opposed. The showing as far as entering the league with reservations was concerned was 60 for to 36 against. While only 93 of the 135 were willing to enter the league, 102 found the Harding-Hughes world court acceptable, 33 being willing to accept the Borah world court as a compromise.

Replies were received from 24 publications that do not register their political affiliations in current newspaper directories. These publications stood 12 for the league and 12 against. All of the 12 that favored the league were willing to accept the Harding-Hughes court, 9 saying no.

The total number of editors out of the entire 735 who registered a no to each of the four questions was 72.

While in the majority of instances replies to the questions were confined to a straight yes or no, a number of the editors heard from set forth their position in greater detail.

Q. What makes a bird stay in the air? M. W.

A. The manipulation of birds' wings has been analyzed to a certain degree by an ultra-rapid camera, invented by C. Francis Jenkins of Washington. Mr. Jenkins has shown the exact motions of a pigeon's wings. His pictures demonstrated that the back stroke, when the wings touch over the head, propels the bird, while the forward stroke, when the wings meet under the body, sustains the pigeon in the air.

Q. What is the origin of the expression "drinking a toast"? M. C.

A. The English expression "toast," which is equivalent to the continental "health," had its origin in the old custom of putting a piece of toast in the wine-cup before drinking, from a notion that it gave the wine a better flavor.

Q. Is laughter antiseptic? P. L. H.

A. S. Weir Mitchell, nerve specialist, said it could be used more effectively than medicine to fill prescriptions. Good humor aids digestion and was appreciated by the ancients who employed jesters to make jokes and puns at meal time.

Q. What rock is popularly known as "The World's Greatest Autograph Album"? C. C. H.

A. Inscription Rock or El Morro in New Mexico has the only extant memoranda of certain early Spanish explorations, the earliest inscriptions dating back to 1526. The spring that furnishes water for the troops still furnishes from the shape of a castle which rises 200 feet out of the plains. It is large enough to conceal an army in its recesses.

Q. Is it true that the Czar of Russia was the head of the church? V. G.

A. The Czar of Russia was the titular head of the branch of the Eastern Orthodox Church known as the Russian Church.

Found She Could Paint; Changed Calling At 53

New York—Have you got a secret talent, unsuspected and dormant? Maybe you'll discover it when you're 50 or so, and you'll startle the world by climbing instead of sliding down the toboggan.

Look at Marie Van Vorst, internationally known novelist. At 53 she has discovered suddenly that she can paint.

"Don't be chained to one career," she says. "Start a new one. Age never is a handicap. You can do twice as much at 50 as you can at 25. Just to prove that Dr. Osler was wrong, I've got two careers now instead of one, writing books and painting pictures."

"I had been writing all my life. But I was ashamed of some of the 40 books I had written, though I made money and people called me a successful writer."

"I had to live 53 years to find out that I was not meant for writing alone. Last July the artist Mary Foote was visiting at my home in Normandy. She suggested that I try to paint. Just for fun I tried."

"That first day I painted for seven hours. Since then I've completed 50 pictures. Forty I brought with me to this country. Seven are already on exhibition and five I have sold."

"Into my paintings I am putting the same talent and brilliance that I have always tried to put into my books. It is by my painting that I mean to gain a new kind of fame, equal to the old."

"But could I have started painting when I was 20 years old? Or 30? Or 40?"

"No. I couldn't have started one moment earlier. I wasn't mature enough to paint before."

"There is a tragedy in the man or woman who at the age of 50 sits down with folded hands to wait for the end. Everyone has a latent talent of some sort."

"At 50 the man who made a failure of interior decorating because of too great sympathy for other people's woes can start in and become a success as a minister."

"At 50 the man who made a million in the pickle business can satisfy his thwarted ambition to become a sea captain."

"At 50 the woman who has raised a family can study law and run for the legislature."

Miss Van Vorst, who in private life is Signora Gaetano Caglati, will remain in the United States for six months after which she will return to her home and two children in Italy.

Wash Produce Well Before It Is Canned

The truth is that every woman could wash away half her canning troubles. Of course it is difficult to get a vegetable entirely clean of all organisms, and even so it might spoil from other causes. However, it is a fact that a thoroughly clean vegetable stands a much better chance of seeing the winter through behind the glass of a tidy jar than a carelessly washed one does. The dirt that clings to vegetables is naturally full of micro-organisms, and those that live in the soil are often the most resistant kind; they are used to hard times, and at the first sign of adversity they go into a shell, like the turtle, which in their case is called a "spore form." In this state they may be boiled for hours, only to "come to" when they find themselves comfortably housed in a jar of food. As soon as their activities begin, your food begins to spoil. Here are a few pointers about washing vegetables: Wash your string-beans before you begin to prepare them, and wash them well; otherwise you carry the dirt from the outside of the bean into the cut-portion, and the chances

Greens—spinach especially—are the hardest of all foods to rid of soil. Success lies in washing these in warm water instead of cold. Use water as warm as the hand and wash in many waters—so many that no trace of sediment is seen in the last water. And wash in this case means scrubbing the greens between the hands as clothes are rubbed, using a brush for the first attack on the roots and stems and a knife for trimming away the root-stalks and dead or dying leaves. When the washing is finished, plunge the greens into cold water to crisp again.—From the Delineator.

KAUKAUNA EAGER TO EVEN SCORE WITH SHEBOYGAN

Graby, Shortstop, Fails To Appear For Sunday's Game In Appleton

Kaukauna—Sheboygan, state league leaders, play baseball here Sunday with Stump's machine. Sheboygan has won its last three games and is gaining a strong hold on first position.

The kick by other teams in the circuit that Kaukauna is not drawing large enough crowds has sort of subsided since attendance began falling off in general. Support is picking up in Kaukauna and fair sized crowds are filling the stands every game.

Euster Braun, veteran moundman, will leave for the Chair City Sunday. He won twice from Kaukauna with the aid of the horsehoe and the Sumpties are after his scalp. In their last meeting here Kaukauna was leading 4 and 2 and had the game practically won in the seventh inning. The heat became too much for Trentman and Sheboygan burst out ahead. Trentman again will pitch for the locals.

Fans have been wondering what became of Graby, Stump's star shortstop. The lad was going so good that he asked for a raise in salary which was refused. After being out a few games, Graby and the local management settled things again. The shortstop was booked to play last Sunday at Appleton but failed to show up although the Milwaukee lads waited for him.

Scenario For Kaukauna Homecoming Is Being Prepared In East

Kaukauna—"The pageant of Kaukauna which will be given on Aug. 30 and 31 during the city's homecoming week, will not be a carnival, a parade, a kermess, a pantomime," is the statement of the author of the history of this section. "It will be a sweeping drama of heroic action, played in a great natural theatre under the stars. It is a story of this land from the mound builders to the founders of the present city, its characters will include the great Black Gown, Pera Marquette, LaSalle, the explorer of the Mississippi, Pontiac, the great figures of the fur trade and of the early history of Wisconsin. Crooks, Cass and Dodge and finally the builders of the first settlement at Kaukauna."

The story will be enacted by the characters on a great stage under a glow of light, each episode in the costume of the time. It will be a visual and dramatic representation of history, not only the history of Kaukauna but of early Wisconsin, of the old northwest, and of the primitive life before the coming of the first white men. This drama will be presented by the citizens of Kaukauna and the neighboring cities.

Part of the preliminary scenario has already been written including the earliest historic scenes. Choice of characters for the event will not be made for a time since rehearsals will not begin until the early part of August.

COUNTY FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE AT END OF 6 MONTHS

Road Construction Causing
Drain On Highway Fund
Balances

Outagamie-co shows at the close of the first six months of 1923 as reassuring a balance sheet as that of any corporation, it is evident from the June report of John E. Hantschel, county clerk, to the county board of supervisors. The county on July 1 had a cash balance of $408,110.75 and accounts receivable of $79,206.64, with current liabilities of only $6,044.32.

Commencement of the summer road building and maintenance began laying its effects on the county highway funds, for these were reduced from $205,768.90 on June 1 to $180,616.65 on July 1. This balance is expected to dwindle rapidly for a few months, under the burden of several concrete highway projects and other road improvement jobs.

FOUR FUNDS OVERDRAWN

Four funds are showing overdrafts, but with the state as debtor no one is worrying about them. The deficit in the state patrol fund, for instance, is $4,758.65, school supervisors fund, $4,535.72, training school $1,471.70, bridge fund, $1,485.69.

GREEN BAY MAILMEN WANT WEEKEND HOLIDAY

Mail carriers at the Green Bay postoffice are circulating petitions among patrons on the various routes to test sentiment as to granting of a Saturday half holiday to the mailmen. If enough signatures are secured to show popular approval the petitions will be submitted to the postoffice department in Washington. Milwaukee carriers were successful in obtaining Saturday afternoon off by this method and Green Bay hopes to do the same.

43 Varieties Of Dahlias At Catlin Home

One of the show places in the east end of Appleton is the dahlia "farm" operated by Attorney Mark S. Catlin at his home, 430 Rankin-st. Few people in Appleton are aware that Mr. Catlin has one of the remarkable flower collections in the city at his home. Forty-three varieties of dahlias, ranging from tiny "button" flowers a half inch in diameter to huge specimens as large as a saucer, are included in the collection.

The plants he now has were raised from bulbs but he is permitting some of the flowers to go to seed in order to produce new varieties.

Mr. Catlin has been raising dahlias for four or five years, but his collection did not come into public notice until quite recently.

"THE TOLL OF THE SEA" COMING FIRST PHOTOPLAY IN NATURAL COLORS

Heralded as an invention which is destined to revolutionize the production of motion pictures, the new natural color process will be shown to the patrons of the Elite theatre today, Friday and Saturday when the first Technicolor photoplay, "The Toll of the Sea," is presented. Highly enthusiastic advance notices have been sent broadcast about this photoplay, and the most distinguished critics have agreed that as last motion pictures in natural colors are a reality.

"The Toll of the Sea" has been photographed by an entirely new process. It is not, strictly, a development over older forms which have been previously tried and found wanting. It is instead of a radical departure in photography, and to arrive at its successful culmination two noted scientists gave seven years' research. That they have reached their goal cannot be questioned, for the photoplay is said to have scenes of surpassing loveliness in which the characters and settings are as real as they are in actual life.

The story that is told in this motion picture has many of its episodes laid in China. The selection of this picturesque country is admirable for the purpose of displaying effective coloring, and every opportunity is presented to show vivid hues in strangely beautiful settings.

It must not be understood, however, that "The Toll of the Sea" is merely an experimental picture. The story that is unfolded is keenly interesting. It tells of the sad fate of a charming Chinese girl who marries an American, only to be forgotten when her lover returns to his own country. He returns to her, of course, but it is on his honeymoon, and his little son and his Chinese mother have waited a long time for his coming, and when he does come he only adds to the unhappiness. The solution of the problem confronting the girl, and her way out of her sad plight is thoroughly in keeping with the character of the story.

A splendid cast is seen in the various roles. Anna May Wong, a Chinese girl of charming personality and excellent pantomimic skill is seen as little Lotus Flower. Hers is a remarkable performance. Kenneth Harlan is equally fine as Allen Carver, the American lover. Beatrice Beahley is the American wife, and Baby Marian is the unfortunate son of the unhappy Lotus Flower. Others in the cast are Ella Lee and Ming Young.

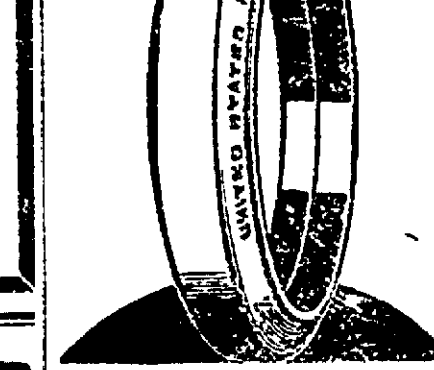

"The Toll of the Sea" was produced by Technicolor Motion Picture Corporation. It was directed by Chester M. Franklin from the story by Frances Marion. J. A. Ball was photographic director. Metro Pictures Corporation is exclusive distributor.

Whole City Invited To Banquet For Noted Frenchman And Party

Programs For Banquet And Chapel Meeting Are Being Arranged—Want City
Decorated For Visitors

Realizing the impossibility of offering tickets to every person who would like to attend the banquet in honor of General Henri Gouraud and his party in Elk club next Tuesday evening, the committee in charge of selling the tickets, headed by William Van Nortwick, has arranged to leave the pastboards at the chamber of commerce for those who are not personally solicited. A large number of persons will be asked to purchase the tickets, but the committee knows it cannot possibly reach all who wish to attend. Tickets are sold at $5 each in order to raise money to defray expenses of the noted French general and his party. Capacity of Elk hall is 225 persons and only that number of tickets will be sold.

ASSURED OF SEATS
Guests at the banquet will be assured of seats in the chapel where the public meeting is to be held because a large section of seats will be reserved for them. The general, it is expected, will be the chief speaker at the public meeting.

Major Lothar A. Graef, who commanded Co. A of the 15th machine gun battalion, will preside at the banquet and at the public meeting. It is almost certain that Gen. Gouraud, Gen. Henry J. Kelly and Col. William Donovan will speak at the banquet and at the chapel.

The detailed programs for the banquet and chapel meeting will be announced in a few days. They probably will include short addresses of welcome to the visitors.

CITY TO BE DECORATED
Decorations of the chapel and of the city has been entrusted to H. L. Post. A large quantity of French flags have been ordered for decoration of the banquet hall, chapel and streets and householders of the city also will be requested to fly French flags. Announcement probably will be made where the flags can be obtained.

Inasmuch as Appleton is the only city in Wisconsin to be visited by the distinguished Frenchman, the Rainbow Veterans association, which is sponsoring the reception, is endeavoring to give the Frenchman a rosy picture of this state. He will be given an opportunity to see a typical small-city of America and will be shown the development of the rich farming country of which France hears so much. An interesting feature of the visit will be a trip along the trail blazed by Father Marquette and the other early French explorers who were the first white men in the Fox river valley.

It must not be understood, however, that "The Toll of the Sea" is merely an experimental picture. The story that is unfolded is keenly interesting. It tells of the sad fate of a charming Chinese girl who marries an American, only to be forgotten when her lover returns to his own country. PETITION SEEKS APPOINTMENT OF CITY PARK BOARD

Mayor Agrees to Name Commissioners If People Want Them

Appointment of a park board is sought in petitions which are being circulated in Appleton this week. The petitions were prepared by Fred Felix Wettenge, former park board member and long an active worker for an adequate park system for the city.

Mayor Henry Reuter has assured Mr. Wettenge that he will appoint the board if there is sufficient demand for one, as indicated by the petitions, and also if he can find men who are qualified to work and have the willingness to give their time and energy.

Appleton had a park board until about two or three years ago when the council decided that supervision of parks should be turned over to the board of public works. It is contended that this board has done little or nothing toward improvement of the city's parks until the last few days when steps were taken to provide water for Pierce park.

Mr. Wettenge is confident that no difficulty will be experienced in obtaining a large number of signatures to the petition or in finding men who can and will give time and thought to park improvement.

'Moon' Is Basis Of Large Trade In Sunny South

By Associated Press

Chicago—Run running along the Florida coast has developed into such a flourishing industry that some Florida automobile dealers sell cars especially built to transport liquor, furnish a Negro chauffeur and guarantee safe delivery anywhere, the Chicago Daily News declared Wednesday in the second of a series of copyrighted articles describing run running along the Atlantic seaboard.

The writer, who with a bootlegger named "Terry," investigated run running along the Florida coast, declared he had been approached by such an automobile dealer who believed the newspaperman to be a bootlegger and described transportation methods, particularly the Negro driver.

"The secret is this," the article quoted the dealer as saying, "If you buy a car from me I will supply a Negro chauffeur who will drive you through in style for $10 and his expenses. Most of the northern run drivers who try to take booze through from Florida make the mistake of driving the car themselves. They are a hard lot, they wear caps and sweaters, they don't shave, some chew tobacco, they talk with their 'Rs' spread all through their conversation. A southern cop can spot them as far as he can see them. If you take one of my sedans and one of my chauffeurs and simply roll back all dressed up in the back seat and let my chauffeur do your lyin' for you, I positively guarantee that you will get by. To make assurance doubly sure, take a pretty girl along to loiter with you in the back seat. In fact, for a trifling extra charge I will furnish the pretty girl."

On the trip to Florida, the writer declared, prohibition was the predominant theme of talk among passengers. While passing through Alabama, where even the sale of beer is prohibited, the writer said he observed that light of thirteen passengers in the observation car had pocket flasks. A ninth, who was from Alabama, was trying to beg a drink.

"Gary" Munger's Life Story Is A History Of Seymour

BY W. F. WINSEY

Recently my attention was attracted to an old man seated on a bench in front of the Falk hotel in Seymour, whom the passersby were greeting with "Hello Gary, you are out today; how are you?" and many other expressions of more than passing interest and familiarity.

The man addressed was of large rugged proportions, straight as a rush, full bearded, gray haired, bald-headed, clear-eyed as a child and animated. He was sweltering under the heat of an afternoon sun and responding to the greetings with the utmost delight and cordiality. If not for the surroundings a stranger would judge that the old man was holding a reception.

At an opportune time, the writer worked his way to the man and ventured, "I see you are widely acquainted, do you live in these parts?" The man responded, "Well, I guess I do. I was the first party of white settlers in what is now the township and city of Seymour." The man was G. E. Munger.

A series of questions elicited the following story:

Story of Pioneer Days

Since my wife died, 12 years ago, I lived in Beloit a few years, but longed for former scenes and former acquaintances. I returned to Seymour five years ago, built a cottage on Elm street and excepting my dog, am living in the cottage alone.

When we came to Seymour, my father built a log cabin on the spot where Dr. Hittner's residence now stands. When I was 11 years old, the nearest school house was built a mile and a half from our cabin. During the seasons, my mother, after loading me down with a generous noonday lunch, sent me off daily to that school.

All went well with the school, with the lunch and with myself, until one morning, I found the trail to the school about a mile from home blocked by a fallen tree, on which was seated a large, burly, unknown Indian.

"Wah," said the Indian when he noticed my uncertainty and saw me stop. "Boy going to school? Got tatum in basket? Indian came all the way from Neenah. Very hungry. Boy give Indian tatum?"

At this juncture I opened the basket and took therefrom one of two huge bread and butter sandwiches and gave it to the Indian. The Indian stuffed the entire sandwich into his mouth, struggled with it a few seconds and then started at me with the mingled expression of thankfulness and expectancy.

Pleased with the wonderful, expert performance of jaw and fingers that I had witnessed, and wishing to see the exhibition repeated, I tendered the Indian the second and last sandwich. Soon the Indian was again waiting in hopefulness and smacking his eager chops. To my delight, four fried cakes and two gigantic pieces of mince pie also disappeared with great dispatch.

The Indian gave me an appealing look and in reply upturned my basket. The Indian answered, "Too bad, too bad. Boy has no tatum."

"That's nothing," I replied. "I'll have a good supper when I reach home."

"DEED WILL BEAR FRUIT"

On reaching home in the evening my mother upbraided me for giving all my dinner to an Indian but my father interposed, "No, the boy did just right and his kind deed of today will bear some kind of good fruit in the future."

Twenty-four years after the Indian had feasted on my school lunch, John Shepherd, who is still living near here, and myself were hauling supplies from Seymour to Keshena for the government. One night, the teams arrived late at the government building in Keshena during a terrific downpour. The stables were packed and no room remained for our horses. There was nothing left but to return to Shawano, 25 miles distant, through the rain and blackness.

In this dilemma, an Indian, overhearing the conversation and recognizing one of the voices, approached and held a lantern before my face. "Come," said he, "Indian show you a stable for your horses."

The Truth About Eczema and Piles

"Thousands and thousands of people," says Peterson of Buffalo, "are learning every week that one 35-cent box of Peterson's Ointment will abolish eczema and banish piles, and the grateful letters I receive every day are worth more to me than money."

"I had eczema for many years on my head and could not get anything to stop the agony. I saw your ad and got one box and now I owe you many thanks for the good it has done me. There isn't a blotch on my head now and I couldn't help but thank Peterson for the cure is great." Miss Mary Hill, 420 Third Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.

"I have had itching piles for 15 years and Peterson's is the only ointment that relieves me. Besides the piles seem to have gone." A. R. Rucker, 117 Washington Avenue, Racine, Wis.

Use Peterson's Ointment for old sores, salt rheum, chafing and all skin diseases. Druggists recommend it.

SEYMOUR'S FIRST SETTLER

G. E. MUNGER, AND THREE OF HIS LITTLE FRIENDS.

The Indian led the way a short distance through the woods to his hovel, sent us to his cabin near at hand, and cared for the teams himself.

In the cabin we found a squaw at work with the supper dishes, a table, two chairs and a dozen Indians squatted about on the floor. The Indians evidently had just finished their evening meal, and were smoking. We were invited to take the chairs. When the guide came in from the hovel he crumpled something in the direction of the squaw that started her replacing food and dishes on the table.

"BOY" IS RECOGNIZED

After I had eaten with the relish of the Indian on the log, our host, carrying a box over to me and seating himself upon it, addressed me thus: "Same voice, same voice, same eyes, same eyes. Near Seymour, twenty-four years ago, on your way to school you gave all your dinner to Indian, on a log. Hungry Indian. Good tatum. Best eatum Indian ever tasted. I am that Indian. Some voice, same eyes, you were that boy."

The host early in the morning, had the team fed and ready for the return to Seymour. When we on the way, I asked John Shepherd, my companion, how he liked the entertainment we had received in the Indian cabin last night. "All right," replied Mr. Shepherd, "but I would have enjoyed my supper and breakfast better if that squaw had not been continuously spitting tobacco juice between the cracks in the floor while we were eating." For rebuttal, I said that I was too hungry to notice the peculiarities of the squaw.

On March 3, 1850, the Mungers, grandfather, S. W. Munger, half brother, Willis Munger, G. E. Munger, the subject of this story and his father, D. H. Munger, arrived from Dane county. In what is now the township and city of Seymour. They found no settlers ahead of them except Henry Becker who had arrived the night before. The Shepherds were near, but lived in what is now the town of Osborn.

CAME BY CARAVAN

This group of Mungers came by caravan from Dane county to Appleton, from Appleton over a road that had been blazed and brushed through dense timber, to Sacoia, and from the latter place to Seymour.

From Sacoia to Seymour there was nothing but an Indian trail. The Mungers, to proceed, employed Oneida Indians to cut seven miles of road ahead of the caravan from Sacoia through the Indian reservation to Seymour.

The caravan consisted of 24 head of cattle, 2 horse teams, 4 yoke of cattle, household goods and family party of nine people.

From E. C. Goff, Appleton, Daniel Munger had bought 50 acres of land on the east side of the principal street in Seymour and this was the destination of the Munger caravan. On its arrival, the members built a log cabin on the site of Dr. Hittner's residence, large enough to accommodate the people of the party.

As the Mungers brought money with them, they employed the Indians to clear the land. Although the party arrived in March, they sowed four acres of wheat the first spring and had 20 acres cleared. The next spring saw 30 acres more of this tract cleared. For a number of years, the crops were thrashed with a flail.

William Munger, grandfather, bought a half section of land on the west side of the principal street in Seymour and divided it among four boys and one girl.

LAND WAS "SUGAR BUSH"

Both of these tracts were timbered with heavy sugar maple and in spring were the scenes of roving bands of Indians. They camped on the grounds to make a year's supply of maple sugar each spring, and when they were through, they stored their sugar-making equipment on the grounds and left for other fields. The Indians had already arrived for sugar-making when the Mungers pulled into Seymour.

Through an interpreter, the Mungers were obliged to inform the native sugar makers that the land had changed hands and that the Indians must withdraw.

"It was a great spectacle," said Mr. Munger, "to see the Indians breaking camp and loading their tepees, blankets, matting out of which the walls of the tepees were constructed, their cooking utensils, tepee poles and sugar-making outfit on the backs of ponies. The more bulky articles were the matting tepees, sap troughs, made of birch bark and the squaws."

LIFE STORY TOO LONG

To write the biography of "Gary" would be to write the history of Seymour from the time the first settlers arrived to the present day, especially, that part of it that required for success a combination of pioneer brain and brawn and the power to sustain hard knocks. Although the life work would be interesting to undertake and to complete, there isn't room here for such an account. It must, therefore, suffice to say, that "Gary" wore out the strength of his once powerful frame and made himself old before his time, in cutting down the heavy timber, logging, disking stumps, piling brush and burning an opening in the dense forests for civilization to enjoy, on the spot where Seymour now stands.

HONOR ENGINEER ON ANNIVERSARY

Marshfield Railroad Man Has Been In Service For 54 Years

By Associated Press

Marshfield, Wis.—Jack Clune sat in the cab of his engine recently, and pictured the changes that have taken place in the world since he first piloted a railroad engine.

It was the anniversary of his introduction into the railroad business. Mr. Clune is 69 and he has been employed by the Omaha branch of the Northwestern road for 54 years, as an engineer for 48 years. He piloted the engine into Marshfield, peered off the overalls and walked home.

The veteran engineer was met at home by a delegation of railroad, professional and business men. He was escorted to the home of Rev. V. A. Mason. There another group was present and the engineer was presented with another engine to drive, but this engine has a motor and is driven by gasoline instead of steam.

"When you first started driving engines there were no automobiles, were there Jack?" one of the men asked.

"No sir, I was just thinking of that as I sat in the cab. There were no telephones or automobiles or airships. The world do move."

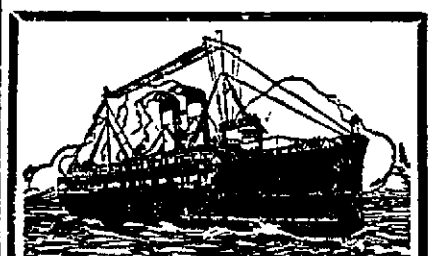

The automobile was the gift of railroad men, jurists and others. Many railroad conductors running out of Milwaukee on the Northwestern had a part in the gift. Mr. Clune has never been in a serious accident in the 48 years he has driven a locomotive.

MINNEAPOLIS WORK HOUSE LOSES "KEEPER OF PIGS"

Minneapolis—The Minneapolis city workhouse Wednesday had lost the services of Emil Larson, "grand keeper of pigs" at that institution.

Larson, who has been in court more times than any one in Minnesota and perhaps the nation, Tuesday was sentenced to the state penitentiary to a term not to exceed five years for stealing $287 from a restaurant.

Larson had served 114 terms at the workhouse for various offenses, mostly drunkenness. Each time he was assigned to care for the pigs and so became known as the "grand keeper of pigs." He is 37 years old and the theft of the money was his first serious offense in his long court record which extended over two score years.

MADISON POLICE ENFORCE RESPECT FOR TRAFFIC LAW

Madison—The Madison police department has started action against violators of automobile laws. Starting with Saturday when fifty-eight appeared in court the number increased to eighty-nine on Monday but dropped to fourteen on Tuesday. Most of the arrests are for the violation of the city ordinance requiring the stoppage of a car at arterial highways.

Milwaukee Woman Offers Strong Proof

"I don't know of a better thing I could say for Tanlac than that I am still enjoying the splendid health it gave me years ago," said Mrs. A. Rohrwasser, of 115 S. Bay-st., Milwaukee, Wis.

"I had suffered for years from what I was told was ulcerated stomach. My appetite left me and all through the day I would have sharp pains in my stomach that extended clear up into my shoulder blades. Dizziness added to my misery and my nerves were so on edge the least little thing would worry me. Finally I got so weak I could hardly do my housework."

"Tanalac made me feel like a new person entirely. My appetite sharpened up again, the pains and dizziness left me, my nerves steadied down and I gained nine pounds in weight. Ever since then I've felt fine and been so strong my housework is easy. Tanlac is just splendid."

UNIONS PICK FIVE STATE DELEGATES

Bachman Will Represent Trades And Labor Council At Superior

Five delegates have been elected to date, two from Appleton and three from Kaukauna, to attend the convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor at Superior next week, according to reports made by various unions at the Trades and Labor council meeting Wednesday evening.

F. E. Bachman, president of the Trades and Labor council, will represent that body. William Smith will represent the barbers' union. The Kaukauna men are Joseph Murphy, delegate of the pulpworkers, David Jaube, car repairers, and Bert Mooney, machinist helpers. It is possible that other labor units also may send representatives.

The convention opens Monday and will continue for an entire week. One day will be devoted to a joint convention session with the Minnesota Federation. The Gopher workers are meeting at Duluth, and the two states will gather at a place called Fond du Lac. Resolutions on national labor matters probably will be adopted at the larger gathering.

STATE RIGHTS MAY BE SMITH'S POLICY

thing or not. Governor Al Smith's memorandum signing the repeal of the Muller Case law would be the platform of the party. The document has been analyzed and supported by some of the best legal minds in the country and regardless of the attitude taken in western states the fact is that there are a great many votes available to a Democratic candidate who stands on the states rights idea, for prohibition is still a live issue in the eastern states, however arid the west may have become.

RELIGIOUS QUESTION

There is one phase about Al Smith's candidacy which bears no relationship to the prohibition question. It is his religion. Politicians say that a Catholic could not be elected president of the United States and that it would be futile to nominate him. This is predicted on theory that religious warfare would ensue and that the candidate of the other party would be the beneficiary of such strife. On the other side of the question are some interesting facts. For instance, a Catholic has recently been chief justice of the United States, namely, Edward Douglas White. Several Catholics have been elected to the governorship of various states of the Union. Many Catholics have been members of the cabinet. There are a great many people, moreover, who would resent the issue of religious bigotry and who would take the position that if the Empire state of the Union could afford to ignore religious questions and elect Al Smith governor, so might the federal electorate itself.

SELFMADE MAN

Governor Al Smith has behind him a career which appeals to the imagination of the average man. He is a self-made man. He is an American of the Grover Cleveland type. He has a keen mind and a rare faculty of getting at the bottom of things. His popularity in New York state was a fact before prohibition became acute as a political problem. He would have been re-elected in 1920 but for the general Republican landslide. He was beaten by only 70,000 that year, while Harding carried the state with a million plurality. None of this could be attributed to "wet" strength. The question which friends of Al

A. F. ZUEHLKE ELECTED HEAD OF REEDSVILLE BANK

A. F. Zuehlke of Appleton was elected president of the Reedsville State bank, succeeding his father, the late G. A. Zuehlke, at a meeting of the board of directors Thursday afternoon. N. A. O'Rourke was elected vice president and E. C. O'Rourke, cashier. The meeting was preceded by a meeting of the stockholders which elected a new board of directors composed of E. C. O'Rourke, N. A. O'Rourke, A. F. Zuehlke and B. J. Zuehlke.

HECKART IN CHARGE OF "Y" CAMP AT DOUGLAS

Clyde Heckart, who has been of office secretary at the Appleton Y. M. C. A. for the early part of the summer left Thursday for Camp Douglas where he will have charge of the office of the new Y. M. C. A. building in the National guard camp grounds. The state has recently built a recreational building for the Y. M. C. A. and it is in the office of the new building that Mr. Heckart has been placed in charge. He will remain there for the entire encampment period of the national guard.

Smith are asking is, when in the recent history of the Democratic party has there been a man who could demonstrate such strength in the Empire state. The elements that have gone to make up Al Smith's popularity in New York state are to be found in New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Al Smith has played ball with Tammany. He would start out with New York's ninety votes and probably would have the sympathetic support of Illinois and New Jersey and Massachusetts. It's too early to say how far his candidacy will get, but he will be in the running if the Democrats decide to make the fight on state rights.

ZIEGLER FAMILY WAS PIONEER IN DAIRYING HERE

Apple Creek Farmers Among
First To Buy Purebred
Cattle

W. F. WINSEY

When successive cropping of farms forty years ago in Wisconsin had reduced the average yield of small grain to eight bushels to the acre and Governor Hoard was urging the farmers in the southern part of the state with all the powers of argument at his command to stop depending on grain and to take up dairying instead on the reliable foundation of pure bred cattle, a small band of progressive farmers north of Apple Creek, headed by the late Frederick Ziegler, decided that in order to restore the fertility of their farms and to make greater profits they would give dairying a trial. They also decided to remove the scrub cow from their farms and gradually to introduce the purebred Holsteins.

In 1921, there were in Outagamie county 1,550 pure bred Holsteins and a cheese factory within reach of each farm but when Mr. Ziegler and his neighbors decided to trust their fate to the dairy and the Holstein cow, there was neither cheese factory worthy of the name nor a Holstein cow in the county. These men, when the history of local dairying and purebred cattle breeding is written, will be given considerable space.

As the soil was impoverished, the yield of grain discouragingly low and prices not equal to the cost of production, there men, as might be expected under the conditions, had no funds with which to purchase herds of purebred cattle. So they agreed to buy a pure bred sire and to keep the animal for the use of the organization on the farm of Mr. Ziegler.

A bull was purchased for $250 from the herd of Powell and Lamb, Syracuse, N. Y., which was the calf of a cow imported from England a short time before the shipment was made to the Apple Creek farmers.

Three years later, Mr. Ziegler bought his first purebred female calf from Meyer Brothers, Ballard road. The sire of the calf was the Ziegler imported bull. From this foundation, with the exception of bulls, the entire line of Ziegler Holsteins has descended. The Zieglers have bought bulls from time to time from Frank Fargo, Lake Mills, C. C. Cramer, Milwaukee, Rudolph Schaefer, Appleton and Walter Wickert, Appleton.

Among the large number of local Holstein breeders that either Frederick Ziegler or his son Fred, started as breeders of Holstein cattle are J. J. Laux, Walter Wickert, John Taegle, Nick Paltzer, Mossholder and son, Robert Winters, Lemke Bros. and Chris Schroeder. Besides this the dairy centers all over Wisconsin. Zieglers have sold pure bred cattle in Michigan, Texas and Kansas. They disposed of 12 head at the recent commission sale in Appleton.

Mr. Ziegler sold a heifer some time ago to Hughes & Sons that at three years of age had the state record for butter production. He sold a cow to Mossholder & Son that produced 23,000 pounds of milk in a year and 1,054 pounds of butter.

Mr. Ziegler sells all his surplus, purebred cattle to breeders and dairymen.

When Fred Ziegler was asked lately how long he had been a breeder of Holstein cattle, he replied, "all my life." He came long ago into the ownership of his father's herd and now Edward Ziegler, his son, has charge of the herd.

During the month of June, Mr. Ziegler, after feeding milk to several calves, delivered to a nearby creamery a daily average of 500 pounds of milk, with a 2.2 test, from 15 cows.

Mr. Ziegler believes thoroughly in official cow testing associations because he says they give the owner of cows an opportunity to try out various balanced rations. But the principal advantage is that the owner is given a chance to weed out from his herd the cow that fails to pay a profit.

The names and records of a few of Mr. Ziegler's best cows follows:

Priebe Cornelia De Kol II, 10 years old, 24,18 pounds of butter in a week, 85 pounds of milk in a day and test 2.5.

Priebe Cornelia, Uneeda, 12 years old, 51 pounds of milk in a day, 22 pounds of butter in a week, test 2.5.

Dera De Kol Baby, 2 years old, 15 pounds of butter in a week and 350 pounds of milk, test 2.6.

De Kol Baby Clothilda, 24 53 pounds of butter in a week, milk test day 2.2 pounds, test 3.5.

Dera Pride Doebe, not quite 2 years old, 16 pounds of butter in a week and 48 pounds of milk in a day.

Netherlands Baby Parthena, 1 years old, 21 pounds of butter in a week and 325 pounds of milk.

The Zieglers have done much in Outagamie to place dairymen on a paying basis by the introduction of purebred Holstein cattle on the farms, and advocating alfalfa and the balanced ration.

BUILD BUDDHA STATUE FROM 2,600 BODIES

By Associated Press
Tokio—An image of Buddha made entirely from human bones will shortly be dedicated at Joganji Temple, Fukagawa. According to the head priest of the temple, more than 2,600 dead persons' bones had been stored during the past 10 years within the temple's Charnel House, at the request of those poor people who were unable to bury the dead after cremating them. The storage in the bone house received his approval, on the capacity of accommodation and after a conference last autumn of the people concerned, the idea was hit upon to make Buddha's image from the powdered bones.

Manila, P. I.—From collier to millionaire in the space of 12 years is the experience of Ong Che, who came to the Philippine Islands 15 years ago from China. He worked as a collier in Manila, performing all sorts of menial tasks, for nearly three years. After accumulating a few hundred dollars Ong went into the business of buying and selling junk. Today he is rated as worth $1,000,000, all of which he acquired in this field. Ong declares he will buy anything from a wire nail to a steamship. In order to substantiate the latter statement he announced he had just purchased the old steamer Missoula from the quartermaster department of the United States Army.

American Traveler Is Shocked At Absence Of Sanitation In Europe

Sewers, Water Systems And Bathrooms Unknown To Some Places—United States Army Gave Others Powerful Lesson In Cleanliness

The lack of sanitation is possibly the most outstanding single feature in foreign lands. It is a pity that this should be so but we Americans have a much more developed sense along this line than most Europeans do and it often hides or obliterates what we should see in foreign peoples. It is one of the college girls who had just graduated and she was asked what outstanding experience in college had left the most lasting impression on her mind. In the four years of college life. One would surely think the answer would fall from the realm of the intellectual, moral or spiritual life but this girl blithely replied that the outstanding event was when she and two other girls had a hilarious time one day in their room of the dormitory and in the scuffle they upset a bottle of ink which was spilled all over the brick wall on the outside of the building and as a penalty they had to spend a whole Saturday on ladders taking the ink stains off the wall.

Thus some such apparently minor thing as a lack of sanitation bobs in one's mind the first thing in reflecting on foreign countries a good deal as the ex-emperor of Germany experienced while in Jerusalem in 1898. The Turkish authorities had torn down the Jaffa gate in the city known as the Beautiful, they had actually swept some of the streets and sprinkled them because they had heard that in Germany they washed the streets at night, but after the emperor had walked through the city he said: "I have seen much dirt and filth in my day but never so much on one heap."

Those of us who have been in Jerusalem will corroborate this and one should not enter the average city of Palestine if you want to retain the old time pictures of the Holy land with all its beauty, spiritual halo and religious atmosphere. Take the homeless dogs for example, in Jerusalem there were 4,000 of them in my day. You, who have never seen them, know nothing of how these poor creatures look. They are diseased and filthy. In Constantinople they had recently 27,000 of them and I counted 113 of them in the carion district somewhat outside the city where they lived off the carcasses of hogs, sheep, horses and other decaying animals.

ROAM IN PACKS

Such a scene is indescribable. These dogs lived in little republics for some reason. Each republic had a pack that had closed relationship by rubbing noses in some way and any strange dog that entered their territory was challenged and that was the way one would see a dead dog in certain districts which had succumbed through the onslaught of the rest of pack because he had invaded foreign territory. These dogs were the scavengers of the street; they were the sanitary police. No bits of food escaped them and to see many of them so diseased that the hair had fallen from them, made more of an impression on some of us than the tree where Judas hanged himself, or the tomb of Absalom. And these animals were amenable to the friendship of men; we petted some of them and fed them, but in their filth they were very jealous and could not stand the petting of even these belonging to the same republic.

We asked some of the natives why such hordes of dogs were kept and were told that the Mohammedan religion forbade the killing of dogs and that there was something sacred about them like the ancient Germans believed, when they always brought in a dog at the death-bed of their own, because they had an instinctive belief that the dog would find the way when no one else was able to do so. I attended a lecture in Basel, Switzerland, some years ago in which a Turk spoke on the Mohammedan religion and someone asked him the question why the Mohammedans always called the Christians "dogs" and this man adroitly evaded the question and passed it off by saying that "the Mohammedan people will cease calling Christians 'dogs' as soon as Christian people refrain from calling their dogs 'Sultans'."

The first thing the English did when they got into Jerusalem was to send out the sanitary squad. Some times it would seem that the Anglo-Saxon has the greatest respect for cleanliness of all people in Europe. Our American boys gave Europe a lesson in sanitation its people never forgot. We were told repeatedly that the camps where our boys were housed were veritable object lessons of cleanliness. The English took many a cue from us and from some correspondence that comes to me from Jerusalem, it is interesting to note that the first thing done in the city was to dig a sewer and to get a water supply.

HAS NO WELLS

Jerusalem has no wells. It is situated 2,541 feet above sea level on a solid rock. The water was drunk from cisterns that caught and stored the water. In rainy seasons. There were no toilets or bathrooms. Streets and alleys were used by the natives. The camels, donkeys and cows with goats, sheep and dogs lived on these streets and alleys, for Jerusalem is built compact. There are remains here and there in Palestine of water ducts that the Romans built, there is one in the Hinnom valley and we noticed one right outside the disreputable village of Jericho and also one near Nablus, the ancient Scythian where the water was still running. These ducts were often 30 feet high, built like a bridge and the trough on top was from three to seven feet deep carrying water for miles and miles. This was before water pipes were dreamed of.

It should be said, however, in fairness to Jerusalem that for two, possibly three thousand years they have this story to deal with more of the sanitary arrangements or the lack of them in some of the countries we recently visited, and with the oriental countries out of the way, let us proceed to some of the lands more familiar to us.

Ireland impressed us as unsanitary, possibly as much as any country of North Europe. True all European countries are unsanitary from our point of view but Ireland is somewhat unfortunate. It is true they were not at their best a few months ago. They have been raising up revolutionists in six years, their cities were crippled in a dozen ways and raising fighters means that the raising of the sanitary squad is forgotten. The street cleaning was perfunctory. If there was any. The floors of the stores had indescribable filth. They appeared as though they had not seen water for years save that which was sprinkled on it to lay the dust. The meat markets were wide open. The custom of hanging up the meats on the outside to advertise them, is carried out by all good Irishmen and even in England. The flies and the dust blown from the street were all there doing full duty. One seldom ate meat with a relish in Ireland after seeing it thus exposed. Here meats are kept in the most sanitary way; there it is handled and transported in the streets in a way that would never be tolerated in America. It will take decades of training to bring them where we are.

DEPOTS DIRTY

The railway depots in Ireland particularly are unsanitary to the extreme and this can be said of the average station in England and France. Germany once prided herself with washing streets and public places but since the close of the war there has been a breakdown in the morale of the people and the average place has been surrendered to King Filth, the prince of all diseases. Often this is due to the fact that there is not an abundance of water and it can then be easily explained why things have to be subjected to such an accumulation of debris.

Take again the average home you visit. Where will you find a bathroom in the average English home? You never get a bath free of charge in England or the continent. Baths are found in hotels and very seldom a room with a bath, and there in only the most high priced hotels. The reason for this is, most of the European cities have been built a long while. To put in a sewerage system and a water system, say in some of the smaller towns, would entail a cost impossible to bear even for 20 years to come.

We recall in one hotel in Edinburgh we had a meter with a slot for a coin for the bath and the coin we placed was 5 pence and warm water appeared and filled the tub with about 6 inches and 10 and behold, then it stopped. No! it was not boiling hot water but just warm. The tub was the ordinary tin tub that had the washings of a decade upon its surface and it was not over comfortable. Nor are the English bathrooms heated for the practice is to take a hot bath in winter and come out steaming into the cold and giving yourself a vigorous rubdown after the oblation.

KITCHENS UNTIDY

Kitchens always interest us. There is a reason. Americans believe that a woman who can manage a kitchen and a husband is the prima donna of American citizenry. It has been proved that the grounds of divorce are often in the coffee pot and that many of the strikes in this country are due to bad cooking. Most of us would go on a strike, too, if we saw how food is prepared in some of the homes and hotels. We do not recall seeing screens in Europe to keep out flies. Swatting the flies right on the food is not our custom. Cheese, meats, jams and other edibles are exposed in public places and more so in the kitchens. After visiting the kitchen of a certain castle of a family in Germany where there were servants galore and waiters dressed in white gloves and knickerbockers serving us at the table, I had all I could do to eat the food, for the visions of a greasy floor, a swarm of flies, grimy walls, and dark nooks and corners were still in the foreground of the imagination. It is surely a matter of mental standards and increased knowledge when it comes to sanitation. Some of us have been brought up on the water cure for colds and fevers, which was applied within and without to do away with disease and debris. Possibly that is why some of us believe in the good old fashioned immersion instead of sprinkling, for sanitation is a matter of getting under an emblem of good health, good will and good feeling. The French for example did not know how to be sanitary in the Panama canal experiment. American engineers turned the tide after thousands had died. Japanese doctors tell us that since American missionaries have taught them sanitation they are capable of saving over 500,000 babies annually from disease and death. Let water prevail and let the kick of filth which is now a fugitive from justice be arrested and executed as a vile and impious wretch.

"3 Station Cottages, Princetown."
"Dear Sir: The police have told me that you are in Princetown, and it seems as though Province had sent you. I fear that I have no right to seek your services directly, but if you can answer the prayer of a heartbroken woman and give her the benefit of your genius in this dark moment, she would be unspeakably thankful."
"Faithfully yours,
"Jenny Pendean."

Mark Brendon murmured "damn" gently under his breath. Then he turned to Will.
"Where Mrs. Pendean's house?"
"In Station Cottages just before you come to the prison woods, sir."
"Run over, then, and say I'll call in half an hour."

Brendon read the letter again, studied its neat calligraphy, and observed that a tear had blotted the middle of the sheet. Once more he said "damn" to himself, dropped his fuming basket and rod, turned up the collar of his mackintosh and walked to the police station, where he heard a little of the matter in hand from a constable and then asked for permission to use the telephone. In five minutes he was speaking to his own chief at Scotland Yard, and the familiar cockney voice of Inspector Harrison came over the two hundred odd miles that separated the metropolis of convicts from the metropolis of the world.

"Man apparently murdered here, Inspector. Chap who is thought to have done it disappeared. Widow wants me to take up case. I'm unwilling to do so; but it looks like duty." So spoke Brendon.

"Right. If it looks like duty, do it. Let me hear again tonight. Half-past eight, Princetown, is an old friend of mine. Very good man, Goodby."

Mark then learned that Inspector Halfyard was already at Fogginton. "I'm on this," said Mark to the constable. "I'll come in again. Tell the Inspector to expect me at noon for all details. I'm going to see Mrs. Pendean now."

The policeman saluted. He knew Brendon very well by sight.

The detective nodded. Then he sought No. 3, Station Cottages. The little row of attached houses ran off at right angles to the high street of Princetown.

Brendon knocked at No. 3 and was admitted by a thin, gray-haired woman who had evidently been shedding tears. He found himself in a little hall decorated with many trophies of fox hunting.

"Do I speak to Mrs. Pendean?" asked Brendon; but the old woman shook her head.

"No sir. I'm Mrs. Edward Gerry, widow of the famous Ned Gerry, for twenty years Huntsman of the Dartmoor Foxhounds. Mr. and Mrs. Pendean were—are I mean she is my lodger."

"Is she ready to see me?"
"She's a cruel hard hit, poor lady. What name, sir?"

"Mr. Mark Brendon."

Mrs. Gerry opened a door upon the right hand of the entrance.

"The great Mr. Brendon be here, Mr. Pendean," she said; then Brendon walked in and the widow shut the door behind him.

Jenny Pendean rose from her chair by the table where she was writing letters and Brendon saw the auburn girl of the sunset.

CHAPTER II
THE PROBLEM STATED
As Mark entered the girl rose and saw in his face an astonishment which seemed not much to surprise her, for she was used to admiration and knew that her beauty startled men.

Brendon, though he felt his heart beat quicker at his discovery, soon had himself in hand. He spoke with tact and sympathy, feeling himself already committed to serve her with all his wits and strength.

"Mrs. Pendean," he said, "I am very glad that you learned I was in Princetown and it will be a privilege to serve you if I can."

"Perhaps it was selfish to ask you to my holidays," she said. "But somehow, I felt—"

"Think nothing whatever of that. I hope that what lies before us may not take very long. You will do well to let me know everything bearing upon it that went before this sad affair."

"I can throw no light at all," she said. "It has come like a thunder-bolt and I still find my mind refusing to accept the story that they have brought me."

"Sit down and give me some account of yourself and Mr. Pendean. You cannot have been married very long."

"Four years."

He showed astonishment.

"I am twenty-five," she explained.

She Shields Workers Who Handle Poison

Boston—Teaching at Harvard is only a side line for Dr. Alice Hamilton, only woman professor at the university medical school. She spends only half her time at it, for the rest is devoted to the "poison trades."

A specialist in industrial hygiene, Dr. Hamilton has conducted innumerable investigations into those industries where the danger hazard is greatest. As a result of her activity, much remedial legislation has been passed to make the factory safer for the worker.

"Of the poison trades," says Dr. Hamilton, "the lead trades ranks the highest. The number of industries using this poisonous lead is enormous. In Illinois where I made an investigation recently, there were more than 70 different trades in which lead was used."

"The making of white lead, the smelting, manufacture of storage batteries, practically all piping and plumbers' supply trades, the printers' and pottery glazing, all rank as dangerous trades, because of their danger of poisoning the worker. There is danger, too, in the manufacture of aniline dyes, and the making of felt hats in which nitrate of mercury is used."

"There has been a complete revolution of the white lead industry since 1912. Few women are engaged in the poison trades here, and the United States is much better off in this respect than Europe."

Woman's Party Will Meet To Ask Rights

New York—"How much longer will women wait for liberty?"

The National Woman's Party asks this question and expects to answer it at the Seneca Falls conference, beginning July 13, celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first woman's rights convention in America.

"At this first convention," Alice Paul, vice president of the party, explains, "Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and other feminists of the day made it plain they were not asking privileges but demanding rights."

"They demanded equality in marriage, industry, education, political office, accepted moral standard; in the church, in the professions, the guardianship of children and in contract and property rights."

"Today, after three-quarters of a century, the realization of these ideals is not much nearer than the old solution about the woman's soul. Equality has not been obtained in America in any of the respects enumerated."

"It is astonishing to learn that in some states a mother has practically no power over her own children—the father is the sole guardian. Elsewhere the husband is the absolute owner of his wife's services."

"In industry no pretense is made of paying women the same wages as men or giving them the same promotional men receive."

The woman's party believes that women should take a stand for absolute equality, and that an amendment to the constitution should be made providing that men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and in every place subject to its jurisdiction.

One meeting of the conference will be devoted to an anniversary pageant, prepared by Hazel Mackay of Massachusetts, brother of Percy Mackay, the playwright. Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer of New York will preside at the memorial meeting and Josephine Casey of Chicago, formerly organizer in the American Federation of Labor and now chairman of the industrial council of the Woman's Party, will be one of the principal speakers. Mrs. O. H. Belmont, president, will be present and will preside.

On the last day of the conference, will occur the pilgrimage to the grave of Susan B. Anthony.

"The Woman's Party believes that the fame of our great women has been too much neglected," Miss Paul concluded. "We hope this meeting at Seneca Falls will start a revival of interest in feminist history and will permanently establish the place of Lucretia Mott and Susan B. Anthony in the history of the development of the United States."

Drafts Are Not Always Danger To Good Health

There has grown up among us a mistaken idea that it is dangerous to sit in a draft. Now as a matter of fact, a current of air is very desirable, and without some motion in the air proper ventilation is impossible. This does not mean, naturally, that one should be directly exposed to a strong current blowing on an exposed part of the body, particularly when perspiring. Athletes who allow themselves to sit down in a draft before they have had their baths are sure to pay the penalty of stiffened muscles, if nothing worse; and trainers are always very careful that as soon as a man has finished violent exercise he is immediately sent to the dressing room or else wrapped up warmly.

Persons who have cherished the delusion that all drafts are dangerous, if not fatal, should accustom themselves gradually to air in motion. It would not be prudent for them to try to become "fresh-air fiends" all at once, any more than it would do for those that have worn heavy clothing all their lives to change to very light garments in the dead of winter. By using common sense in the process of hardening, however, any one can "make friends" with moving air in a short time and not run any risk of catching cold.

Contrary to a very general idea, the colds are not caused by drafts nearly so often as by other agencies. The cold is usually of germ origin. These germs are almost always present in the nose and throat, and when the resistance becomes sufficiently lowered for them to gain a foothold, the cold becomes acute. Men who live outdoor lives, even though they are frequently chilled through and through and must go about with wet feet and sleep in damp clothing, seldom have colds.—From The De-linctor.

Black Hair Most Rare, Science Has Discovered

Girls, you're still being analyzed. It's your hair again. Nothing about bobbing or the way you do it up. Just a little treatise as to what color hair is the rarest.

No less than the dignified Smithsonian institution at Washington has been figuring the matter out. Its annual report gives the results of this research. Absolutely black hair is the rarest.

That's one on you red-headed girls who supposed that auburn tints were nature's most unusual handiwork. You come second. One out of every 100 women has hair that is actually black. One out of every twenty has red hair. One out of every fourteen is a blond.

MOSTLY MIXED COLORS

The great majority is of mixed colors. These include nut browns, ash blonds, mouse color, dishwater grays and other blended types.

With the men the figures are a little different. With them actually black hair is also the rarest, one in 100. One out of every fifty has red hair and one out of sixteen is the blond type.

So with this data you will have no difficulty in figuring out the individuality of your sheik.

There are five red-headed women to every two red-headed men, by the way. Dr. Alex. Hedicke, of the United States National museum, figured the data out for the Smithsonian institution.

"I am inclined to agree with the statistician that truly black hair is the rarest type," said the owner of a well known Milwaukee beauty parlor on Saturday, "but he must have had a hard time figuring it out, unless he kept his specimens in a cage or had a special agreement with them not to change their colors."

CHANGES COME EASILY

"Hair has a way of changing color unexpectedly these days. Dark brunettes come in here and go out light blonds, blonds become auburn haired and those whose locks are of indefinite hue are prompt to change that tint to a definite type."

"I suspect the expert must have had to do a little guess work in coming to his conclusions. But he may have had assistance from someone conducting a hair dressing establishment. I know we folks are the only ones who know the real truth about the color of hair."

"The human mind is hard to satisfy. It happens often that women who have hair of really pretty color want to change that color to something else."

"Probably truly black hair is the least seldom seen among my own customers. But auburn hair also is rare. Ladies who have no hair whatever are the rarest of all. There are some, but you are not supposed to know that."

Thought Of Next World Aid To Bliss

Hindu Woman's Ideas Concerning Marital Life Are Radically Different

New York—Found—a solution for marital difficulties. It's reincarnation.

"American wives would be far more patient with their husbands if they knew they were going to be born again," says Mme. Sushila Devi, Hindu writer and teacher now on a visit to this country.

"In America you have what you call love matches, but everywhere I see people rushing to divorce courts."

"In India our marriages are arranged by the parents but you hear very little of divorce."

"It is because of the Hindu woman's belief in reincarnation. No matter how faithless her husband may be, she knows that if she is forgiving and patient her next life will be correspondingly happier."

"But if she seeks to meet deceit with deceit, or fault finding with anger, she knows that she will have to pay for it in her next life. More, she knows that the troubles she endures now may be her payment of mistakes made in a past life."

"And the Hindu woman has learned something else that the American woman has yet to learn—that if she is patient while her husband has his ding, in later years he will be her slave."

Mme. Devi does not deny that the reasoning applies equally well to husbands.

She thinks there is an amazing lack of sympathy between the American parent and child.

"It is the one discordant note in the American civilization," says Mme. Devi. "The children are rude, they disregard their parents, and the parents seem neither to notice nor to care."

"Your newspapers are full of advice to girls on how they may be attractive to men. It would be far better if your girls were taught to think less of the sex appeal and more of how to endure themselves to everyone—to have soft sweet voices and amiable tempers and never to speak back to anyone."

MEATLESS SUMMER DISHES

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH

I wonder if all housekeepers find it as hard to think of appetizing luncheon and supper dishes as I do.

One must avoid too much meat and yet serve dishes which may contain some meat, be attractive and appetizing and sufficient.

A variety of breads help a good deal, as they always please the family. Some of the bread dough may be kept in the ice box and used as needed. One day hot rolls made richer by the addition of butter, sugar and possibly an egg. Another day, cinnamon sugar and raisins will make the plain dough into most attractive cinnamon rolls. When making the bread into loaves, knead raisins into sufficient dough for one loaf. Raisin bread is a delight to both children and grownups.

Biscuit dough, made with baking powder or sour milk and soda, may be treated in the same manner as yeast bread.

For a supper out of doors, try filling the hot biscuits with pounded sardines, well seasoned with salt, mustard and lemon juice. They are very "tasty."

French toast is made by soaking stale bread in egg and milk to which are added salt and sugar. These soaked slices of bread are then sautéed in butter until a delicate brown. Serve with jelly or preserved fruit.

A pleasant change from white bread, toast is toasted brown or graham bread, dipped into a cream sauce and served with crisp bacon or scrambled eggs.

Cooked macaroni may be mixed with bits of left-over meat and tomato sauce; cooked rice combined with meat, fish or bacon. These are all hearty supper dishes and may be prepared after breakfast or dinner and baked at supper time.

For dessert during the hot days, custards, molded cereal with fruit, berries and cookies, or cake and gingerbread, should be served—all foods which can be made early in the day.

Household Suggestions

CANNED STRAWBERRIES

If you wish your strawberries to be red after they are canned, add two tablespoons of vinegar to each quart of strawberries when canning.

RAISED WOODWORK

In cleaning carving or any raised woodwork, a brush is absolutely necessary.

MEAT SKEWERS

Save the wooden skewers that come in the meat and use them for cleaning the corners of window frames and other corners that collect dust.

DRESSMAKING AT HOME

SINGLE PATTERN SUFFICES FOR CHILDREN'S CLOTHES

Children's clothes should be hygienic, comfortable and durable, and the one-piece dress for winter or summer, or the rompers that so button-together that they are virtually in one piece, are really the only types of garments to be considered.

Here again a single pattern will be an adequate guide, for there are virtually but two types—the straight dress and the one that has the top gathered into a waistband. A third type in which the skirt portion flares a bit can be readily adapted from the pattern by slanting the sides of the skirt pattern instead of cutting them straight.

Flat braids, bias bands cut from a material of contrasting color, tiny tucks, smocking, bon buttons, embroidery and embroidered motifs are the most desired forms of decoration, and there are many forms of applique that are quite as effective as if the work were done directly on the material. The wise home sewer will make use of them to save time. The diminutive clothes are so quickly outgrown that it is not policy to put too much time and energy into them.

Brown linen and French flannel are two materials that, though often lost sight of, are splendid for children's clothes, as both launder exceedingly well, wear well and come in exceptionally good tones and shades for the purpose. Cotton voile, too, is practical for the small boy's blouses and the baby girl's dresses.

STRAIGHT DRESS OR ROMPERS FOR YOUNGSTERS

and a pretty idea for the latter, as indeed for all the little straight-line models, is to cover each seam as well as the neck, sleeve and dress hem with embroidered tape or to let in a row of lace.

Never try to do this by hand. Baste carefully and with small stitches along either edge, then stitch on the machine. It is difficult either to applique or to insert bands so they have the professional touch, and even more than in clothes for grown-ups must youngsters' clothes show a perfection of finish.

TOMORROW: For miss ten to seventeen.

Adventures Of The Twins

A Dreadful Mistake

"Where to, next?" asked Nancy, when she and Nick had helped the little Ragdolls to spring clean Mister Owl's apartment in Maple Tree Flat.

"Why, let's see," I think, "we'd better be cleaning Scramble Squirrel's summer apartment next," said Mister Tatters.

"So all the Ragdolls gathered up their buckets and scrubbing brushes and mops and brooms and things and slid down the elevator shaft in the maple tree until they came to Mister Squirrel's front door."

Nancy went in first. Having their magical shoes the Twins could wish themselves any sizes at all and now they were no larger than the Ragdolls.

"My, oh my! It's as dusty as a miller," cried Nancy, looking around. "Nick you beat the carpets and I'll clean the pantry and Mister Tatters, you and the rest of the Ragdolls can scrub the walls and floors."

Very soon the apartment of Mister Squirrel was as busy as a beehive. Dirt flew like magic and things grew as bright as new pennies.

"Come here and help me, Nick," called Nancy by and by. "When Jack Frost chased Mister Squirrel out to Dreamland last fall he left some nuts behind. And they can't be good now. Let's throw them out."

So the Twins emptied the nut-bin, and Rag Tag, Raggy, brought a big basket and carried them all away to dear knows where!

"Now, that's done!" declared Nancy briskly.

"What's done?" asked a sleepy voice. And there stood Scramble Squirrel himself!

"Why, your house is as clean as a band box," announced Nancy proudly. "We just got done throwing out the last of your old nuts and acorns and things so you'll have room for new ones."

"What!" shrieked Scramble, suddenly wide awake, rushing over and looking into his empty bin. "My precious nuts! There won't be new ones for eight months and those weren't bad at all! I've used them all winter off and on."

"Rag Tag," called busy Nancy, "get your basket and bring all those nuts back as fast as you can."

And only then did Scramble remember his manners and thank them.

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Olean, N. Y.—"Every month my blood would go to my head and I would have such a headache, nose-bleed, backache and pains that I could not do my work. At night I could not get my rest and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read some of your testimonials about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, so I decided to try it. I had only taken two bottles when I began to be better, and my back did not hurt me nor my head ache. I felt like a new woman. PAT MORAN'S REDIEGS MENACE LEAD OF GIANTS

Cincy Wins Two Games From Pittsburg And Is Camped In Second Place

Four Teams Closely Bunched In Race For Third Place In American League—Sam Rice Is Injured

By Associated Press
Chicago—A red menace has appeared to challenge the right of the world's champions, the National League, for the title of American League champion. The Chicago Cubs, led by their manager, Joe Judge, and his boys from Cincinnati today are occupying second place as the result of their double victory over Philadelphia Wednesday by scores of 6-2 and 9-5. But the task of the Reds is a little harder than that of Pittsburgh as the teams stood Monday. The Giants lead in games then was three and one half; today it is five. They triumphed over Pittsburgh 6 to 1 yesterday.

When Grover Alexander is in good form there can be but one result for his team. Wednesday was one of those days and the Chicago Cubs reversed the results of Tuesday by shutting out Brooklyn 2 to 0. St. Louis again defeated Boston 10 to 4, making it three in a row.

YANKS WIN AGAIN

The feature of the American League does not concern the league leaders. The Yankees who with a lead of 12 games are too far out in front for interest. The Huggins won another close game from the White Sox Wednesday and Cleveland strengthened its hold on second place getting another victory over the Athletics. The Indians now have a lead of three games over Connie Mack's aggregation.

The real race in the Johnson circuit now is for third place with four teams bunched for the position. The Detroit Tigers by taking both ends of a double header 7-3 and 5-1 yesterday from the Boston Red Sox went into a tie with the Athletics for third place. The White Sox are only one and a half games behind and the St. Louis Browns, despite the absence of Sisler since the beginning of the season, are trailing the White Sox by only six points.

WEST SHOWS STRENGTH

The western teams again outplayed the eastern wings in both circuits Wednesday. The Giants and Yankees being the only clubs of the east to win. Wednesday there were six home runs but they were all in the American league and made by two clubs, three by Detroit and three by St. Louis.

Sam Rice, right fielder of the Washington Senators was rendered unconscious and had to be carried off the field when he crashed against the concrete pavilion in attempting to catch a line drive in the game with St. Louis.

Kenneth Williams of the St. Louis Browns cracked out his fifteenth homer of the season while McManus and Schlemmer also potted four baggers. In the Browns one-sided victory over the Washington Senators.

Babe Ruth failed to get any home runs off Red Faber or Hollis Thurston but he smashed out four hits in four times up.

Stanley Coveleskie was backed up by brilliant support and the Cleveland Indians made it two straight from the Philadelphia Athletics when the Speaker poked out a triple which sent in the winning run.

Ernest Quigley, National umpire was rendered unconscious when hit by a foul tip during the first game. He was taken to a hospital where it was feared he has concussion of the brain.

MAJOR WHITE BEATS COLE AT BILLIARDS

Chicago Player Makes High Run Of 84 In Second Block Of Match

Major White, Chicago pocket billiard star, defeated F. W. Cole in their match of 500 points Wednesday at the Arcade billiard parlors. Cole, who is the new proprietor of the Arcade parlors, defeated the Chicago man 125 to 85 in the first block which they played in the afternoon. The two men appeared to be about evenly matched, but White was unable to overcome the lead of the local man which was gained early in the game by several runs of from 25 to 54. The high run of the afternoon play was 54 by Cole, while the best White could do was 27.

White recovers

The Chicago player recovered remarkably when the second block started, and in spite of the fact that Cole's form was as good as it had been in the afternoon, White kept the scores nearly tied up to the last part of the block. When the score stood 242 to 176 in Cole's favor, White made the high run of the day, 54, which won the match.

Cole plans on holding matches of this kind frequently and also intends to match local players.

Jersey City, N. J.—Two modern gladiators, one from the prairies of Kansas and the other from the far stretches of the Argentine will stake their pugilistic futures Thursday night in a twelve round match in the arena at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

For Jess Willard, champion of the world from 1915 to 1919, it will be the acid test in the come-back by which he hopes to obtain a return match with his conqueror, Jack Dempsey. For Firpo it will be the crucial point of one of the most sensational careers of ring history, a stepping stone, if he is victorious, to a chance at Dempsey's crown.

A colorful crowd of probably more than 70,000 fans from all parts of the western hemisphere was expected to witness the combat.

Advance ticket sales had passed the 35,000 mark last night and indications were that this figure would be more than doubled by the time the fistic program begins at 5:15, daylight time. Both fighters were declared to be fit for the greatest efforts of their unusual careers, and experts who weighed pro and con the rugged youth, punch and aggressiveness of Firpo against the generalship power and gameness of Willard regarded the outcome as a toss up.

Firpo's forty years or so seemed to weigh but lightly on his huge frame as he went through his final lumbering up exercises. The big Kansas was the picture of confidence and good condition. He believes that he has overcome the handicap of four years of ring idleness.

Firpo passed Wednesday night in New York after breaking camp at Long Branch, N. J. He too is the personification of confidence. Trained down to the minute he has been coming chiefly by expert handling but also through natural aptitude, from a primitive battler into a two fisted fighting machine. Since he first sprang into prominence last year his opponent has lasted the limit under his smashing attack. He has never met a boxer of Willard's calibre before but he has demonstrated his possession of all the requisites of a first class ring man.

Though overshadowed by the main bout, the semi-final contest of 12 rounds between Floyd Johnson of Des Moines, Iowa, and Jack McAuliffe II of Detroit, has attracted considerable interest.

KEARNS STRONG FOR BATTLE WITH NEGRO

Champ's Manager Tells Chicago Fans Indications Point To Willis Match

Chicago—Unless Jess Willard or Luis Firpo make an unexpected showing in their twelve round bout at Jersey City tonight, Harry Kearns, the colored fighter, will be the next opponent of Jack Dempsey, white heavyweight champion.

This was the emphatic statement made Wednesday by Jack Kearns, who passed through Chicago on his way to New York, to talk over proposed contracts for his champion. Indications point to a fight with the most interested spectator at the time, in Jersey City, and if the public demands that Dempsey meet the winner of tonight's clash Kearns said he will lose no time signing.

UP TO PROMOTERS
According to Jack, everything points to a Willard match, and he asserted that Jess Willard and Tom O'Rourke undoubtedly will sign a partnership for a time, the mill Dempsey's manager said he has given his word he will fight for Richard O'Rourke has Willard's word he will fight for him. As a result of the mixup O'Rourke and Richard will have to get together with Kearns to put the match over. If Dempsey is matched to meet either Firpo or Willard the contest will be staged under Richard's direction.

At any rate, it is definitely assured that Dempsey's next opponent will be either Willard, Willard or Firpo. Kearns admitted this and said the supposed bout will be staged on Labor day.

Fear Must Be Overcome To Swim

BY LYDA M. SHEFFIELD

Director of Swimming, University of California Summer Session, and Co. Author of "Swimming Simplified."
SECOND ARTICLE—HOW TO SWIM THE CRAWL

HERE'S YOUR SAFETY VALVE: IF FRIGHTENED OR FATIGUED—FLOAT!

Don't get panicky if you become tired or think land is too far away for you to reach. Or if you get a mouthful of water—Or if someone runs into you and takes your breath away—

FLOAT. This gives you an opportunity to rest and recover your strength; also your wits, if need be.

No one should try to learn to swim unless he can float. Here's how you can learn: Stand with your right side toward the side of the tank, grasping the railing with the right hand, right arm fully extended. Extend left arm until it floats.

of you palm down, and the left arm down and toward the rear, palm down. Bend your body slightly forward from the waist and start an alternating paddle motion with the arms always keeping them the same distance apart.

ELEMENTARY CRAWL
You will notice from this motion that when swimming one arm always will be under water while the other is in the air. The one which is under water gives you your propelling power and should be pulled down and under forcibly. The other reaches slowly and steadily forward with a slight circling motion, forearm near the surface of the water.

When this arm motion is combined with the face-submerged pushoff and the leg kick described above, you will be swimming the elementary crawl. Try it, but I advise that you begin with only four or five strokes before regaining standing position. Practice on this stroke until you are its master. If you try to rush progress at this point you merely will crawl, properly mastered, will have given you a swimming foundation upon which you later can build other strokes; without it, you are most apt to copy incorrectly correct swimming of those about you. You must feel at home in the water before you can become proficient, and you will when you can swim the elementary crawl.

TOMORROW: Swimming on your back.

INTERLAKE PLAYS KIMBERLY IN LAST CONTEST OF SERIES

Two Divisions Of Factory League Consolidate For Second Half Of Schedule

Interfactory baseball managers met Wednesday evening at the T. M. C. A. to straighten out the mixup in their schedule which attended the closing of the first half of their season. Ewald Elias presided in the absence of A. P. Jensen, and George F. Werner, secretary of the T. M. C. A. acted as secretary. The majority of the managers voted in favor of closing the first half of the schedule with a game between the Kimberly-Clark club and the Interlake team, postponed from the beginning of the season because of rain. This game is to be played Saturday, at the Kimberly grounds.

LEAGUE REARRANGED

In regard to the rearrangement of the league in order to eliminate the weakest team of the first division and give the strongest in the second a chance in its place, most of the managers were opposed to such a step, on the grounds that the team which now leads the second division and has an excellent chance of winning the cup of the "weaker" half of the league would have practically no chance at all to win a cup against the strongest teams of the first division. Therefore it was voted to have but one section in the league for the second half of the season and to play one game. This schedule is to begin July 21, and chairman Ewald Elias is to advise the schedule committee in arranging the new schedule, and to publish it well in advance of the opening day.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION IN APPLETON THIS MONTH

A county teachers' examination for the renewal of certificates will be held at the courthouse Monday and Tuesday, July 30 and 31. Years ago examinations were held at four other points in the county, but as the teachers are nearly all graduates of the county training school the necessity for there has been done away with.

MENDELSON LOSES FIGHT TO KANSAS

Milwaukee Lightweight Is Outpointed In Ten Rounds By Buffalo Man

Rocky Kansas outpointed Johnny Mendelson in ten rounds. Battling Tarsan, shaded Zack Schoendorf in eight rounds.

Johnny Russell shaded Billy Bunch in six rounds. Joe Boyle shaded Peter Gaudes in six rounds.

The invaders came and conquered Wednesday night. Four local sons of Apat, appearing in the fistic festivities at Pep Andrews' Arena. Ice garden were vanquished by as many out of town glove slinging individuals, the most prominent of the quartet being Johnny Mendelson, who, in spite of defeat at the hands of the hair covered Rocky Kansas, thrilled the lovers of the pastime by rendering one of the greatest stand-up fights ever perpetrated on a Milwaukee canvas covered floor.

It isn't a common occurrence to be a patron at a mixup such as was offered by Rocky and John Wednesday p. m. The fact that Mendelson was beaten is but of minor importance. The fight itself is what deserves the commendation of the press and fans. For ten rounds the gritty John attacked the stocky little Wop. At every stage Jawn was fighting like a blue-blooded ring warrior and by so doing he assimilated one of the fiercest body ballers he has ever received in glove combat.

Kearns was on Mendelson right from the jump and in eight of the ten sessions he slammed, bombarded and whalloped the Milwaukeean in relentless fashion. Not once, however, did John threaten to do a tail spin. He was on his toes every minute and in the ninth round he nearly drove the spectators crazy with a sudden flash of form that nearly took Rocky off his feet. The round went to Jawn by an undisputed margin, but as matters turned out Kansas apparently cared up in that inning to prepare for a grand finish and a grand finish he did make, jamming Mendelson's face and body with oh, so many punches.

RIVERVIEW WOMEN TAKE GOLF PRIZES IN OSHKOSH MATCH

Caddies Play Round To Determine Handicaps For Coming Tourney

Miss Joan Clark of Riverview Country club won second prize for low gross score in the golf tournament for women of Fox river valley country clubs in Oshkosh on Tuesday. Mrs. D. C. Shephard won the putting contest for ladies. All members of the Ladies Northwestern Wisconsin Golf association were invited to compete in the tourney.

CLINEDIST CLUB

Another elimination match in the Clinedist club match was played off Wednesday, when F. J. Edmunds defeated Norman E. Brokaw over the eighteen hole course two up. When the first series of elimination matches is completed at the end of this week, there will be eight players left in the contest for the cup, who will play off their matches the following week. It is a custom of the Riverview country club golfers to play in a nine or ten hole match, in which each player covers the course once each week, the lowest score for each hole being counted at the end of the month. In this month's contest, K. S. Dickinson was victor with a record of 25 strokes for 9 holes, and F. J. Edmunds was runnerup with a score of 27.

CADDIES' TOURNEY

Bobby DeGuire, caddy master at the club, put his staff of nine regular caddies through a tournament Thursday morning to determine their handicaps. The results over the nine hole course were as follows: Lester Braulieu, 41; George DeYoung, 42; Conrad Verbrick, 44; Ray Murphy, 45; Ed DeYoung, 50; Norbert Mauthe, 54; George Vanderheiden, 57; Joseph DeWendt, 62; Herman Youngworth, 62.

WANT VOLUNTEERS TO TAKE PLAYERS TO TWIN CITY GAME

Papermakers Journey To Marinette For Battle Next Sunday

Sylvester's crew of baseball players will travel to Marinette Sunday to battle the Marinette-Menominee entry in the Wisconsin State league. Bill Lathrop is scheduled to do the mound work for the Papermakers and Zeller is listed to work for the Twins.

Lathrop has a much more impressive record than the Twins hurler. Zeller has found the going rough in this league, but the Twin bosses are banking on him to find his stride and turn in a win.

Manager Sylvester is looking for volunteers who will take his team to the state line city. The team treasury somewhat resembles an aching void and if fans traveling to the Twin Cities will take along a couple of ball players it will be a means of cutting down expenses. Appleton people who are planning to drive to Marinette and who can take along a few players are asked to notify Manager Sylvester.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Mike Kelly, the scrappy leader of the St. Paul team of the American association, must do a lot of explaining to clear up the situation caused by his attacks on President Hickey of the association. Kelly accused Hickey of suspending four St. Paul players to help Kansas City in the pennant race. Hickey has taken the case to Judge Landis who has ordered Kelly to tell what he meant. In the meantime Charlie Hall is running the team.

Firpo and Willard do their stuff at Boyle's thirty acres in Jersey City tonight. No matter which one loses Tex Rickard will win. An enormous crowd is assured at the scrap to determine which of the two principals will get a chance with Jack Dempsey. Experts in the east pick Firpo to cop but big Jess will have a lot of backers when the bell starts the battling.

A group of young men in Appleton are trying hard to revive interest in tennis. They would like to see the game played on a major scale, with lots of contestants and possibly a city tournament or two. They should have support in their work. Tennis is a splendid game, interesting and fast. What Appleton needs is more courts for this game. Possibly if tennis likers showed enough interest the game could be made more popular here.

The New York Yankees are continuing the march to pennantville and they soon will have such a start on American league clubs that the race will lose interest. It's a mighty fine thing to win a pennant, but it appears from this distance, the magnets would fare better financially if they would arrange their affairs so that it would not be possible for one club to obtain all the finest talent in the league and thereby make a runaway race of it.

Contrary To General Belief, Smith Is Not New Star But Veteran

Contrary to general opinion, MacDonald Smith, who did so well in the British open, is not a recent addition to the golfing luminaries. As a matter of fact, he is a veteran star, who has simply been out of the limelight for several years.

Back in 1910 Smith finished in a triple tie for the national open with Aleck Smith and J. J. McDermott. In the playoff A. Smith won the title.

In 1912 Smith won the western open from a class field with a score of 239. Two years later he finished in front for the Metropolitan championship. At that time, the famous Harry Vardon referred to him as the golfing genius of the nation.

His health a year later, overtook Smith and caused him to drop out of tournament play entirely, although he continued as a golf pro on the coast. Despite the fact that he seldom took part in even minor competition he never let up on his game.

This year, having entirely recovered his health he is playing in a number of the leading championship events. He has made a sensational comeback as to his health and his golf, as his showing in the British open proved.

While MacDonald represented the United States in the British open, he is an American only by adoption. He was born in Carmichael, Scotland. He came to this country with his father, who accepted a position as greens keeper with the Claremont Country club at Berkeley, Calif.

His play abroad has been one of the sensations of the American invasion, as few of the experts gave him much consideration in discussing the chances of the American golfers, yet none played a sounder game.

"While the school, in accordance with the conditions of the early deeds of gift, must continue under the auspices of the Episcopal church," said the Rev. Mr. Baker, "this will be interpreted in a liberal manner and neither the faculty nor the student body will be limited to members of that faith."
